'Bloody Combat' In Costa Rican War Reported

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Jan. 15 —UP—Rebel forces battled government troops in "bloody combat" Saturday night in the first major action of the five-day revolution in Costa Rica, the high command announced.

A high command communique reported the fighting started at a point midway between the Pan-American highway city of Liberia and Santa Rose, 12 miles to the north, late Saturday afternoon and continued after dark.

The communique said the government forces "are triumphing because of superior morale and armament."

The fighting started shortly after a rebel P-47 Thunderbolt fighter plane buzzed a U. S. "peace patrol" plane and then bombed and strafed the highway center of Liberia, 150 miles north of San Jose.

Reconnaissance reports said more rebel planes were being flown into Costa Rican territory, indicating fighting might be imminent. Government forces advanced northward from Liberia toward the Nicaraguan border.

The plane, one of several Navy craft sent out Friday and Saturday from a U. S. base in Panama, was observing troop maneuvers on a peaceful flight over La Cruz, 185 miles northwest of San Jose and five miles south of the border.

The U. S. embassy received a report the plane was fired upon by rebel troops in an area about the size of Chicago soon after a rebel radio station in captured El Amo, Costa Rica, broadcast a warning that observation planes were liable to be machine-gunned.

The United States has lent several planes to the Organization of American States for observation purposes. The patrols were so successful the OAS decided to expand patrols to the land and sea, as well as the air and named a United States Air Force officer to supervise the operations.

Col. Willis F. Lewis, Washington, D. C., was named by the OAS special investigating mission to head its international "military experts committee."

Formation of the committee was made as Costa Rica appealed urgently to the OAS for arms and "other facilities" to combat the rebels. The appeal was made just before the investigating mission

Johns Named By Methodists To New Post

Will Leave To Do National Church Extension Work

Dr. H. L. Johns, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Monroe, one of the outstanding religious leaders hereabouts, has received nation-wide prominence by being named associate secretary of the division of national church extension. This honor came to him by unanimous action of the Methodist board of missions in Cincinnati, O.

It means that he will be forced to leave his local pastorate, as he is now to be charged with the important work of raising two million dollars for the establishment of a Methodist college in Anchorage, Alaska.

He will leave Monroe February 1 and will go first for several weeks' preliminary work in Philadelphia. He plans to leave for Anchorage on March 1, and will spend the month of March there.

It is understood that Dr. Johns has been offered this great post of honor, and a big amount of effort for three or four years, and only at this time has been willing to leave his duties in Monroe for the larger sphere of service in the far north.

Mrs. Johns will not go to Alaska until later in the year.

Bishop Paul Martin will come to Monroe and, on Tuesday night, will hold a meeting in the First Methodist Church, when plans will be effected for the filling of the vacancy created here by the leaving of Dr. Johns.

Interviewed Saturday Dr. Johns stated that Methodism countrywide is solidly behind the important project that calls for the establishment of the first college of liberal arts in far away Alaska.

There is at this time only the University of Alaska, which is devoted chiefly to work that concerns mining, and does not include liberal arts.

There are 2,000 high school graduates each year and they have to come to the States if they desire to proceed with their education. The new college will fill a great need, Dr. Johns said. It is hoped to have it opened not later than 1956 or 1957 but at this point time can only be estimated and many things may occur to prevent an early opening date.

Anchorage is the big city of Alaska and the founding of a first

Hitch-Hiker Is Hurt Here When Struck By Auto

A 34-year-old Texas hitch-hiker was injured shortly before dawn Saturday on rain-swept Louisville avenue in Monroe when he was struck by a car driven by an 18-year-old Eros youth, according to city police.

The injured man was identified as Lenard L. Griffith, 34, of Houston, Tex. Sgt. J. C. Kelly, the investigating officer, said he suffered a fractured left leg and bruises of the head. He was taken to Charity hospital.

Kelly said he was told the accident occurred about 6:15 a.m. Saturday in the 1400 block of Louisville while Griffith was walking east along Louisville.

An east-bound car driven by Albert E. Spillers, Eros, struck Griffith from the rear, throwing him to the hood of the car, the officer said, they told him.

Spillers, who waited in vain for a passing car for some minutes, loaded the injured man into his automobile and drove him to Turnipseed's service station on South Grand street.

Unable to find a hospital, he stopped there to call police. A Mulhearn Funeral Home ambulance completed the trip to the hospital.

Kelly said Griffith told him he had been living with his family in Houston, but was unable to find a job there and was hitch-hiking to his former home in Williamsport, Penn. to look for a job.

Spillers is employed in Monroe, Kelly said.

No charges were filed. About $50 damage was done to the hood of Spiller's car.

Face Sedition Trials

ARRECIFES, Argentina, Jan. 15 —UP— Seventeen persons faced trial for sedition Saturday for their part in a demonstration last week against inadequate water, power and ice services during a record heat wave. Two youths were shot and killed and several persons were wounded when police opened fire Monday night to disperse demonstrators.

Chicago Police Implicated In Policy Racket

Convict Tells Of Big-Time Payoffs; Probe Under Way

CHICAGO, Jan. 15 —UP— Chicago's police department and political organizations were shaken Saturday by a convict's story giving details of big time payoffs to police officials and politicians to protect the city's tremendous policy racket.

The convict is Claude Murphy, 33, serving a one-to-five-year sentence in Joliet state prison for running a confidence game.

U.S. Attorney Robert Tieken and Irwin N. Cohen, counsel for the City Council Crime committee, said Murphy had given them details of payoffs he collected from policy operators as "protection money" to bribe policemen and politicians.

Under Tieken's direction, a federal grand jury is now delving into the multi-million-dollar policy racket—popularly known as the "numbers"—with a view to seeking indictments on income tax evasion.

Two indictments were returned Friday but at Tieken's request they were suppressed until the accused persons are arrested.

The policy, or numbers, game, is a lottery known to be operated by the city's organized crime syndicate which grew out of the old Capone gang.

It fleeces thousands of persons, mostly among the city's Negro population, by taking nickel, dime and quarter bets against tremendous odds.

Prison officials assigned a 24-hour guard to Murphy after he began "talking" about the protection payoffs.

"His life isn't worth a plugged nickel if we don't watch him," one officer said.

Murphy told Tieken that he collected as much as $42,000 a month from policy operators.

Thirty-thousand dollars was turned over each month, he said, to a south side politician.

Guardsmen Out Of Phenix City

PHENIX CITY, Ala., Jan. 15 (AP) —The Alabama National Guard began pulling out of Phenix City today, quietly turning its back on 25 weeks of history.

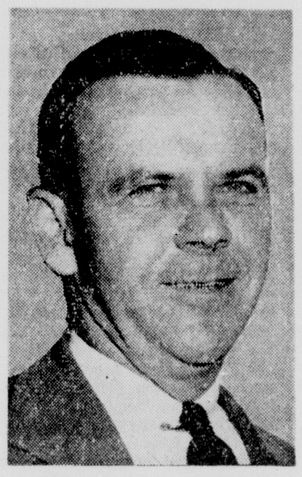
Guardsmen strolled to their cars and headed for armories scattered all over the state. The last of the 50 remaining on duty in the once vice-ridden city will leave Monday.

Whether the guard will return depends on whether incoming Gov. James E. Folsom thinks Phenix City's new civilian law enforcement officers need further help.

Outgoing Gov. Godron Persons ordered the guard to evacuate the town by midnight Monday, when he leaves office.

Sparks, Again Named Highway Board Chief, Tells Of Huge Program

Sen. James Sparks, of Monroe, was unanimously re-elected chairman of the joint highway committee of the state, and formally announced here Saturday "a long range road program is definitely in the making for the near future."



SEN. JAMES SPARKS

"I believe under this program it will be possible to blacktop all of the 6,500 miles of gravel roads in the state system having the necessary traffic count," Sparks said.

Sparks, in commenting on U. S. Highway 80, said that while the highway is in the inter-state system and under federal control, the thinking at present is that U. S. 80 will be a brand new road from Minden to the Mississippi river.

Sparks said that he "believed the program could be financed from the state's tidelands revenue without any new gasoline taxes."

In Baton Rouge Friday the Automotive Safety Foundation suggested a 15-year $2,600,000,000 construction plan, but the committee began thinking in terms of 10 or even five years.

Sen. Sparks said at that time, "I had no idea how much our oil resources were worth and this has changed my whole line of thinking." L. D. Detwiler, representing Allen and Co., of New York, offered to underwrite the billion dollar bond issue.

Committee members agreed that if investors had that much faith in Louisiana's oil future then perhaps the road program could be financed on a pay-as-you-go basis without bonds. The committee was all for getting the big paying program completed as soon as possible.

Detwiler said he proposed a 500 million dollar bond issue to the highway board last week, but was now upping his offer to one billion dollars.

Revamping the 15-year plan into a shorter, faster program, the committee called on:

1. The Highway Department to report by Feb. 1 the "greatest ultimate speed it can put the ASF report into operation and the maximum amount of money it can spend with efficiency."

2. The State Mineral Board to find out by Feb. 1 where it can survey Louisiana's estimated oil wealth or hire some private geological firm to do the job in time for the committee to get the road program in legislative shape for the May session.

Dr. William Ross of Louisiana University, who is directing a study showing where the long range road money will come from, said he intended to suggest a 400 million dollar bond issue for a 15-year con-

Sen. Byrd Raps Federal Highway Bond Proposals

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 —UP— Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) attacked the money-raising formula proposed by President Eisenhower's highway committee Saturday and called it "thoroughly unsound."

"Such procedures violate financing principles, defy budgetary control and evade federal debt law," he said in a statement.

Byrd outlined a substitute plan of his own but devoted most of his statement to a criticism of the advisory committee which went to Mr. Eisenhower Wednesday with recommendations for a $101 billion 10-year road-building program.

The Virginia senator objected to the proposal for a federal corporation which could issue $20 billion in government - guaranteed bonds. Congress would have to appropriate money to pay the principal and interest.

"Actually the committee recommends that the federal government assume virtually the complete obligation for the so-called interstate highway system. . .and that it be financed by methods which are unique sa far as I know and thoroughly unsound," Byrd said.

He objected particularly to a proposal that the highway corporation bonds not be included in the regular government debt figure, which is pressing against the legal debt ceiling. He said the plan would mean "operating the government on two sets of books."

"Count it as you will," he said, "as we spend more than our income, we add to our debt. The least the government can do, in fairness to the taxpayers, is to keep books and accounts in a manner reflecting the true state of our fiscal affairs.

Assembly Appoints Third Executive In Past Two Weeks

PANAMA, Jan. 15 (AP)— In a sensational turn of events, President Ramon Guizado was impeached by the National Assembly today and ordered arrested and tried on murder charges of plotting the murder of his predecessor, Jose Antonio Remon.

The legislators ousted Guizado after almost four hours of a special session, starting at 3:30 a.m., and installed 2nd Vice President Ricardo Arias Espinosa, 42, as the third chief executive of this strategic Central American republic in two weeks.

The Assembly heard a startling confession from Ruben Miro, a prominent lawyer in his early 40s, that he carried out the shooting of strong-man Remon, 46, at the Juan Franco race track here Jan. 2 with Guizado's full knowledge.

The confession—read by an Assembly clerk—said Guizado's son, Jose Ramon Jr., and Guizado's business partner, Rodolfo Saint Malo, also were implicated. The younger Guizado, Saint Malo and Tomas Nieves Perez, another member of the construction company headed by the deposed President, were arrested yesterday.

Guizado has been under house arrest since yesterday at his residence in the fashionable La Cresta section of this capital city. Five

Reds Offer New Lures To Defeat Armament Pacts

MOSCOW, Jan. 15 —UP— Russia offered Saturday to establish "normal relations" with West Germany and indicated it would agree to international supervision of all-German elections if Bonn rejects the Paris rearmament agreements.

The Soviet Union's meaning of "normal relations," as shown in the past, probably would entail an exchange of diplomatic representatives. Observers said this would be tantamount to diplomatic recognition.

The offer was made in a seven-page statement on the German question released by the Soviet foreign ministry Saturday night. Western correspondents were summoned to a press conference at the foreign office for the statement.

Included was a call for all-German elections to speed German unification and a promise to seek agreement "on the establishment of international inspection" of such elections, on condition Western plans to rearm West Germany are junked.

Observers said this marked a reversal of Soviet policy. Up to now, the Russians insisted German elections should be organized and run by the "German people themselves." It rejected international inspection as representing "interference in the internal affairs" of Germany.

McCarthy Again Attacks Stevens In Peress Case

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 —UP— Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy Saturday switched his attack on Democrats to a favorite target, Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens, accusing him of "deliberate deception" in the Peress case.

McCarthy said Stevens withheld the names of Army Counselor John G. Adams and Maj. Gen. Walter L. Weible, deputy chief of staff, from a list of 30 persons involved in the promotion and honorable discharge of former Maj. Irving Peress.

McCarthy calls Peress, a New York dentist, a "Fifth Amendment Communist." The disputed list of 30 persons was furnished by Stevens last spring to a special subcommittee which investigated the Army-McCarthy controversy.

The stormy Wisconsin Republican has been clashing with the Army and Stevens off and on for almost a year about the Peress case.

McCarthy said in a letter to Stevens, which was released Saturday, that the Army's new 10,000-word history of the Peress case showed that Adams and Weible "were the two men who were responsible for the sudden honorable discharge of Peress."

"At this time I would like to know who made the decision to keep this information from the Mundt committee and practice this deliberate deception upon that committee and the American people," McCarthy wrote.

The list which Stevens sent Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-S. D.), chairman of the subcommittee which heard the Army-McCarthy dispute, never has been made public. Mundt gave the list, unread, to McCarthy who read it but has not disclosed the 30 names.

McCarthy's new broadside against Stevens followed the bitter debate in the Senate Friday after the Senate unanimously approved a resolution, pledging it to diligently search out Communists.

McCarthy said he was not "too hopeful" that the Democrats would continue his anti-Communist campaign. He said the party still is controlled "by the same group of men responsible for 20 dreary years of the Harry Dexter White type of treason."

Blood Is Needed For Daughter Of Air Force Major

The seven-year-old daughter of an East Monroe air force major is in desperate need of "several pints" of blood at St. Francis Hospital.

Brenda Riddle, daughter of Major and Mrs. Eddie Riddle, is suffering from a severe virus infection which several times during the past week raised her temperature to 104 degrees, Major Riddle said Saturday.

Several times since she entered the hospital, the little girl has been given blood transfusions in an effort to break the disease, but it has been unsuccessful. She now needs more blood.

According to Major Riddle, the girl has "O" negative type blood, one of the rarest types. Two pints of other types of blood may be traded at the blood bank for one of "O" negative, so any type will be welcome, Major Riddle said.

Major Riddle and his wife, who have two other small children, are both life-long residents of the Monroe area. His wife is the former Jean Carter. He graduated from Ouachita Parish high school and she from Neville in 1939.

The family has been overseas in the Phillipine Islands until recently and were visiting Major Riddle's mother at 411 Ludwig in West Monroe while he was on leave when the child came down with the fever.

Major Riddle's next station is Dallas, Tex., but he is unable to leave until the child leaves the hospital, since her condition is at times critical.

Costa Rican Revolution So Far Bloodless Affair

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following overall appraisal of the Costa Rican uprising was written by Robert Prescott, United Press manager for Mexico and an expert on Central American affairs. Among other important assignments Prescott has covered in Latin America was the Guatemalan anti-Communist revolt last year.

By ROBERT PRESCOTT

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Jan. 15 —UP—The Costa Rican revolution is an almost bloodless, shotless affair that so far has produced no real fighting.

The action has been limited to one air raid on San Jose by a lone fighter plane that obviously did not intend to do any damage, a couple of raids also without damage on the northern highway town of Liberia, and one brief skirmish.

The clash was at Villa Quesada where the rebels first rose up in arms. Apparently the capture of Quesada by the insurgents was only a feint.

The rebels readily withdrew exchanging only a few shots as soon as the Costa Rican civil guard rushed to the scene.

None of the bombs dropped anywhere exploded. They were mostly 25-pound fragmentation bombs. None of the aerial strafing caused any damage.

The rebels presently are concentrated on the range lands just south of the Nicaraguan border. They landed on the Pacific coast and moved inland.

A government volunteer army, led by a handful of civil guards and some Caribbean legion officers pushed up the Pan-American highway to meet them.

If the rebels stand and fight, which presently does not appear likely, they will meet in the prickly brush covered flatlands lying between the rugged Cordielleria range and the Pacific ocean 20 miles away.

The country is so flat that the rebels are able to operate six DC-3's out of cleared pastures. But these apparently are the only airfields in the country available to them.

The government's planes also are operating out of improvised fields since Costa Rica has no real system of airports. The little field almost in the heart of San Jose is the country's main airport.

It is so small that it normally is used only by two-engined aircraft like DC-3's. A new and larger strip capable of handling four-engined planes is being built farther out of town, but will not be completed before March.

That means that U. S. patrol planes sent here to aid the Organization of American States investigation commission can use the new strip only in an emergency.

The government troops mostly are clad in homemade khaki uniforms with United States Army rank insignia. They have a motley collection of weapons from all over the world.

The soldiers for the most part are armed with old German Mauser rifles, although some have other automatic weapons.

There is a heavy preponderance of officers in the government forces since the majority are unpaid volunteers. President Jose Figueres has been handing out commissions in lieu of money.

The rebels that have been captured are dressed very much like the government forces in unmarked khaki uniforms and armed about the same.

My main impressoin at the front was of untrained, undisciplined civilians dressed in a semi-military fashion, milling around dragging their rifle barrels in the dust and getting in each others way.

Negro Killed In Pistol Battle

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 15 (AP)—A 32-year-old New Orleans man shot and killed a Negro today in a gun-battle following an argument over the Negro's language.

Police said Andrew J. Creel told them he killed Johnny Almore with a .22 caliber pistol after the Negro fired first.

They said Creel admonished Almore for driving too fast through a crowd which collected after an earlier accident, then for using obscene language.

Almore said he was going home for a pistol, police said, and Creel, who lived in the area got his. Almore returned and shot wildly, police said, and Creel fired five times. One bullet hit Almore in the head.

Creel was booked pending investigation of murder.

policemen stood guard outside.

The impeached president was removed to the National Guard jail tonight in a radio patrol car.

His trial will be prepared by a special commission to be named by the Assembly Monday. An investigating commission of five jurists, appointed by Guizado to look into the assassination, will continue its inquiry into charges against others alleged to be involved in the plot. This commission is headed by Supreme Court Chief Justice Jose Maria Vasquez Dias.

Police were still holding seven suspects after releasing former President Arnulfo Arias, about 25 of his followers, and a few others.

The public was shocked by the charges disclosed in the Assembly and many persons expressed incredulity. Nevertheless the country remained calm.

The new President "Dicky" Arias Espinosa is popular, and his party is the leader in the coalition that supported the assassinated Remon. The new regime also seemed assured of vital police support by the appointment of Remon's brother, Alejandro, to the Cabinet by the new President.

In a statement asking the Assembly for a leave of absence pending investigation of the charges, Guizado, who, as 1st Vice President, assumed the presidency immediately after Remon's death, assailed Miro's confession as "senseless."

Miro, scion of a respected Panama family and one of the earliest suspects in the slaying, said in his confession—made to Dist. Atty. Francisco Alvarado early Friday morning—that he was offered the post of minister of government and justice as his reward for the killing. No money was involved, he said.

The reading of Miro's confession to the Assembly took half an hour. In it, Miro said he carried out the assassination alone.

Besides Remon, two other men were killed and three were wounded in the exchange of fire between Miro and the President's bodyguard. One of the wounded—wealthy sportsman Antonio Anguizola—died last night.

Miro said he and Saint Malo and Guizado had been discussing the assassination of Remon since about mid-November. The slaying was originally scheduled for Dec. 4, then postponed, Miro sad, at Guizado's request because of current negotiations with the United States over a new Panama Canal treaty.

Saint Malo denied in a statement read to the Assembly he had discussed the assassination of Remon with Miro. He admitted, however, that in several meetings Miro had told him that a coup was being planned.

Miro's confession said Guizado was fully aware of the plot and told of several conferences with Guizado, who also was foreign minister under Remon, at the Foreign Ministry.

However, Miro said, the plan for execution of the plot was conceived by himself alone and he did not inform either Guizado or Saint Malo of the details.

The lawyer said a list of new Cabinet ministers have been drafted by him and Saint Malo, but the list was never delivered to Guizado because the latter always was surrounded by other persons in the days immediately following Remon's killing. Miro said failure of the plot was never discussed. He knew, he said, the price of failure would be his own life.

Miro's confession mentioned Virgilio Patino as an initial go-between in discussions with Guizado. Patino is a prominent follower of ex-president Arnulfo Arias who has been held in jail at David, 300 miles from here, since the night of the killing.

In response to a question by Dist. Atty. Alvarado, Miro said "things began to smell bad" to him when promises which he said Guizado and Saint Malo made were not fulfilled. He was convinced, he said, that these men "turned their backs on me."

Saint Malo's statement was made when he met face to face with Miro in Alvarado's presence. In general, Saint Malo denied the accusations and said if he had known of the plot he would have reported it to the authorities.

Miro said he obtained the machine gun from Edgardo Tejada, former Panamanian cadet at a Guatemalan polytechnic school. The confessed assassin said he parked his car on a lonely road near the race track, turned the lights off and left the keys in the switch.

"You know the rest," the district attorney quoted him as saying.

In a statement also read to the Assembly, Tejada said he smuggled the machine gun into Panama and sold it to Miro between mid-September and early October for $150. He said Miro told him early in December that the assassination was being planned. Tejada explained he did not report this to the National Guard, Panama's police force, as he originally thought of doing because he had no evidence against Miro. On the other hand, he said, Miro could prove Tejada had smuggled the weapon into the country.

Tejada said he stabbed himself in the right hand a few days after Miro had told him of the plot so as to have reason for not participating in the killing. The former cadet said he supplied Miro with three clips and four boxes of bullets. He quoted the lawyer as saying he would dispose of the machine gun by dumping it in the sea.

struction program, "but now it appear we can do it faster."

Sparks said that construction and right-of-way costs would be higher in a 15-year program than in a five-year one.

Highway Department engineers said they are not geared to spend more than 100 million a year, but could expand their staff to handle a super-program.

Detwiler said Louisiana, because of its mineral wealth, was the only state he knew that could finance a billion dollar road program without tolls or new taxes.

He estimated a 500-million dollar revenue bond issue, financed over a 25-year period, would cost the state 250 million in interest, but still leave another 750 million in oil revenue for other uses.

At a cost of about $870,000, Detwiler said his firm would act as fiscal agents and supervise sale of the bonds. James Roddy, representing Scharf & Jones of New Orleans, said his company would act as fiscal agents free.

Despite the offers from the two bond buyers, most committee members appeared to be against a major bond issue, agreeing with Sparks that it is "desirable to carry out this road plan without bonds."

The committee rapidly disposed of one ticklish problem in connection with the road plans: Turning back some 6,500 miles of state road to the parishes for maintenance, as proposed in the ASF report.

Members unanimously decided against unloading roads on the parishes.

Rebels Fire On

flew to Managua, Nicaragua, for an on the - spot - investigation that Nicaragua had sent troops into Costa Rica.

(The rebels radio named Mario Echandi and Roberto Tinoco as members of the revolutionary junta to be established in Costa Rica. Echandi formerly was Costa Rican ambassador to the U. S. and foreign minister. He ran against President Jose Figueres in 1953.)

There was hope also the rebel plans had been stymied and their entire campaign bogged down.

Costa Rican volunteers moved across cow pastures seeking contact with 600 heavily armed rebels said by President Figueres to be cornered between the mountains and the sea.

Officials here said the rebels' situation had been weakened by the conclusion of an investigating body that the "invaders" had come from Nicaragua.

The investigation commission of the Organization of American States flew to Managua, Nicaragua, after the council of the OAS formally charged at a six-hour Washington meeting Friday night that a substantial part of the rebel forces fighting in Costa Rica came from Nicaragua.

Officials here also believed that an air patrol furnished by the United States to the five-nation commission had forced the rebels to ground their small air fleet, which is considered to be their chief weapon.

There was hope here the rebel battle plans thus had been stymied and their entire campaign had bogged down.

"The invaders' situation is weak," President Jose Figueres claimed.

Confident of victory, he said a large group of rebels had been bottled up between the mountains and the sea near the Pacific Coast junction of the Costa Rican and Nicaraguan borders.

Figueres predicted his civil guards and irregulars would drive the rebels into Nicaragua.

"For every rifle, we have 1,000 men anxious to handle it," the President said. "The fight goes very well. We will win."

Hundreds of Costa Rican irregulars pressed forward along Pan American highway seeking contact with the 600 rebels near La Cruz, 185 miles northwest of San Jose and less than five miles south of the border.

The country was calm and business went on as usual everywhere but the tiny northwestern area occupied by the rebels.

Jes' Ramblin'

two million dollars, the sum needed to establish the institution. We are sure Dr. Johns will succeed.

We in Monroe are deeply regretting the loss to the city of such an unselfish, dynamic leader of civic and church affairs. But to a degree compensating is the fact that a Monroe man of the cloth was the only one in the nation to be so highly honored. Also Methodism is shown to be on the move when it is the first denomination to initiate efforts toward building the initial college of the kind in the far north.

Again we are assured Dr. Johns will succeed and honor will come to Monroe for having furnished a man who can do things on a great scale.

While hardly a topic for humor, yet fire develops some amusing situations.

For example, in Woonsocket, R. I., a truck driver and his helper doused a blaze in their soft drink truck by pouring soda pop onto the flames.

And as per United Press in the records of the National Fire Protection Association in Boston the following appears:

A fireman in San Francisco reached out to grab a pretty girl, when she suddenly darted back into a burning room.

She reappeared shortly and explained, "Why I had to go back to get my lipstick."

Up in Haverhill, Mass., a woman turned in a false alarm. She explained in court that foreman failed to show up for a date, and she wanted to know whether he had been working.

Then there was a barn in Sturgis, S. D. Lightning struck it. It burned all the contents but one box. Firemen opened it and found it was filled with lightening rods.

Baptist Student Union Bldg. Dedication Sunday

The Baptist Student Union serving Northeast State College will formally dedicate its new $40,000 building next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 when Dr. G. Kearnie Keegan, director of southern Baptist student work, speaks to an expected full house of students and friends of the Student Union at a special service. Open house will be held following the service.

One of the oldest student organizations at Northeast State, having been organized in 1934, the Baptist Student Union has just recently occupied the new, fully modern building located on the corner of College Avenue and DeSiard Road, across the street from the campus. The building was paid for through contributions made by Baptist people through the northeast Louisiana area. Many of these people are expected to come see the building they provided for student work at the Monroe college, according to Jack Dean, the B. S. U. director.

Among the special guests expected for the dedication ceremonies are President Lewis C. Slater, of Northeast State; Udell Smith, director of Baptist student work in Louisiana; Mayor John Coon of Monroe; Mayor Allen Norris, of West Monroe; Rev. H. L. Sampson, president of district three of the Louisiana Baptist convention and pastor of the Park View Baptist Church; and Jimmy Raymick, college student who is president of the Baptist Student Union.

The open house will follow the dedication service and will be timed from 3:30 to 5:00 p.m. College coeds will serve as hostesses for the event.

The B. S. U. enriches the spiritual lives of students through prayer, Bible study, devotional meetings, conventions, retreats, and Christian social activity throughout this period.

Northeast has always been a predominately Baptist campus, even in the earlier years when it was known as Ouachita Junior College. Presently more than half of Northeast State students are Baptist.

A resolution looking with favor upon the erection of such a building and authorizing the appointment of a committee to explore the possibilities was passed October 11, 1950 by Ouachita Baptist Association in its regular annual meeting. The committee was appointed, and after several meetings, the property at the corner of College Avenue and DeSiard Road was purchased in March of 1951.

Very little was done toward erecting a building until the newly - organized District 3 of Louisiana Baptist Convention adopted the Baptist Student Center as its project in 1953. A Baptist Student Union committee was appointed and went to work right away in an effort to raise the necessary funds for the building.

In its second annual meeting, District 3 of the Louisiana Baptist Convention was informed that the necessary funds were on hand to begin construction of the building. In this same meeting, building plans were completed and approved, and the first Baptist Student director, Jack Dean, was elected. That was May 4, 1954.

Construction began in July and the Center was completed in October. The rooms have been furnished one by one, and the building will be completely equipped by the dedication January 23. It is modern, completely air - Conditioned, and designed to make college life a more joyful and meaningful experience to those students who will avail themselves of the opportunities it offers.

40th Anniversary Of Kiwanis To Be Noted Wednesday

Wednesday, the Monroe Kiwanis club, at its regular meeting in the Virginia hotel, will celebrate the 40th anniversary of Kiwanis.

W. D. Cotton, of Rayville, will be the guest speaker. Mr. Cotton, attorney by profession, is president of the First National Bank of Rayville, a member of the board of deacons of the Methodist Church and has held many district and national offices in Kiwanis, topped by his election as an international Trustee. Because of his over 20 years of Kiwanis service, he is considered by many to be "Mr. Kiwanis" over a wide area centered in Monroe.

In Detroit, in 1915, Allen S. Browne started organizing a new service club to be known as "Kiwanis" and a Detroit tailor, Joe Prance, became the first Kiwanian. From that moment on Kiwanis grew with amazing speed as business and professional men everywhere joined this service club. Today this international service organization numbers almost 233,000 members. There are nearly 4,000 Kiwanis clubs in the United States, Canada, Alaska, and Hawaii.

Through the years Kiwanis has—as have most service clubs—grown in stature and public esteem and in the extent of its contribution to the community and nation. The international membership of Kiwanis has raised almost $14,000,000 in such campaigns as Community Chest, Cancer, Red Cross, etc. They have sponsored over 11,000 youth groups, provided vocational counseling to almost 325,000 boys and girls, assisted approximately 9,000 juvenile delinquents, have made scholastic loans, awards, or given scholarships to over 11,000, have conducted over 10,000 go-to-church campaigns, and have sponsored over 1200 Key clubs in high schools, with a membership of approximately 25,000.

The local club can justifiably claim a great deal of credit for bringing Northeast Louisiana State College to Monroe and the building of our present courthouse, among many other worthwhile community projects aiding or assisting in the betterment of your community.

General MacArthur's Speech— Is It Also To Be Suppressed?

GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, ONE OF THE GREATEST LIVING AMERICANS, IS GOING TO MAKE A SPEECH IN CALIFORNIA.

IT WILL BE MADE ON THE 26TH OF THIS MONTH.

IT WILL BE OF A NATURE OF SUCH TREMENDOUS IMPORTANCE AS NOT TO BE MISSED BY A SINGLE AMERICAN.

IT IS REPORTED THAT THE MAJOR NETWORKS WILL NOT CARRY IT EXCEPT ON A LOCAL CALIFORNIA BASIS. THERE ARE THOSE WHO DO NOT WANT GENERAL MACARTHUR'S WORDS BANDIED ABOUT THE NATION. FROM EARLY REPORTS, THE SPEECH IS GOING TO HURT SEVERAL SOURCES. IT WILL (REPORTEDLY) OUTLINE THE ILLS PRESENT IN AMERICAN LIFE TODAY.

AS SUCH, IT IS TO BE SUPPRESSED.

GENERAL MACARTHUR IS A GREAT AMERICAN. WHAT HE HAS TO SAY SHOULD BE HEARD BY ALL CITIZENS. THE MORNING WORLD URGES YOU, THE READERS, TO SEND WIRES AND COMMUNICATIONS TO THE MAJOR NETWORKS ASKING THEM TO CARRY THE GENERAL'S SPEECH.

A Flop For Dag

Dag Hammarskjold, the "U. N." official sent to "rescue" American POW's jailed in Communist torture dungeons by the Chinese bandits, returning empty handed as many knew he would. He failed, but the Communists succeeded.

The Chinese river pirates in charge of the mainland have scored a tremendous propaganda victory in their race to be admitted to the "U. N." Dag was forced to literally bow to Mao and as a result has degraded his organization more than it has already been rent asunder.

It was hoped by "U. N." advocates that he might return bringing the eleven fliers with him, but the Communists double crossed his plans. That he failed to ask about the other thousands of allied POWs still held by Communists was evident.

Now, here is what did come out of the meetings and here is the latest ransom note delivered by the Chinese Reds: The Chinese Soviets are demanding that all forces of military nature be removed from Korea. This includes both sections of that unfortunate land. To acquiesce would be the same as turning Rhee's section of the peninsula over to the Communists.

The second demand was interesting in that the Chinese Reds are seen to be actually fearful of an invasion of their unlawfully held mainland by forces under the direction of Chiang Kai-shek. They are asking that the Seventh Fleet "take no action against the Chinese People's Republic." Furthermore, they are asking that the fleet be removed from that area.

The Seventh Fleet is not supposed to be in Chiang's area. It is news to this paper that such is still the case. It is not believed that such is the case.

The Chinese Communists are really worried about such an invasion!

So—Chennault, MacArthur and others are correct in their assumption that Chinese Nationalists could stage a landing on the mainland. Why are they not accorded the opportunity? Why are demands not made that an immediate blockade be enforced against the Chinese coast to make these wary thieves and criminals against the human race release the helpless Americans?

The situation in Asia is extremely tense. It is believed that all of Southeast Asia may fall to the Chinese Communists unless some positive step is taken. The problem cannot be solved in Indo-China. In cannot be solved in Korea. It cannot be solved in Indonesia. It cannot be solved in Burma or in Japan.

IT MUST BE SOLVED ON THE CHINESE MAINLAND AND IT MUST BE SOLVED BY CHINESE AGAINST CHINESE.

The Communists are steadily supplying their Chinese Red puppets with the sinews of war. What is the United States doing?

It has sent only seven—repeat, SEVEN—of the later type jets to Formosa.

The Communist Chinese air units have thousands of airplanes with several hundred of the latest MIG jets. How can the United States ever hope to stop Marxism in the Orient by first asking for outside help in getting Americans returned to their native land, and by refusing to arm its real allies there?

What kind of sense does this policy made? The United States spends billions in France and England and what is the result? A good businessman puts his cash where it will do the utmost good.

WHERE IS AMERICAN CASH?

Dag's trip was a miserable and crowning flop. The humiliation of the United States was one result.

It is hoped that the ineffectiveness of Hammarskjold's organization will be borne further throughout the United States.

Reverend McFadden Is Right

Reverend W. H. McFadden in a round table discussion of community problems held last week, hit the jackpot.

In a few words, he stated the main troubles of this community as they have not been defined in many a year. Reverend McFadden came in for much criticism by those who can't stand, or can't take such denunciation.

His congregation should stand foursquare behind him as he has rendered a service to the community beyond measure.

His words were true.

There is little or no community spirit here in Monroe. Moreover, juvenile problems are rapidly getting out of hand. This newspaper has discussed the problem of community spirit as regards young people on numerous occasions in past months. As a public service to the American people, the Saturday Evening Post began two weeks ago, a thorough and most exhaustive search into the problem of juvenile delinquency. Some of the findings of the Senate investigators writing the Post articles point straight in the direction of communities such as this one.

All the points on the path to trouble are found here in Monroe. Yet, when they are discussed, the person doing the discussion comes in for abuse and much criticism.

Reverend McFadden is a man of God. As such, he speaks what he realizes is a basic truth of the day. A community lacking coordination is a community which will eventually have serious difficulties in the future, if not the near future. The Post articles point to two communities, one in Texas and the other in Alabama. Both areas came in for great expansion during the war. One community was prepared for what it knew was coming, and the other was not.

A study by anyone will reveal the results.

Juvenile delinquency in one community was held to the near invisible point, while in the other, there was serious trouble. Again referring to the Post series, a Turk was questioned about community life in his nation. He described how close knit community life managed to look after the youth of a community, a young generation which was guided by the elders. When the community spirit broke down, so did the close knit relation between the young people and their elders resulting in the insertion of the Turkish language for the term, "juvenile delinquency."

Monroe is standing on the threshold of progress. These are fast times in which we live. High powered automobiles, rapid means of communication and an ever expanding community make new problems. Young people are insecure. Many of them are uprooted from their school lives and sent to the draft. Others know not what faces them in the future and they "live for today."

The Christian religion is not taught in too many schools nor is it preached in too many homes. In the old days, things were different. Family life was a proposition de facto and its dissolution was not a thing to be contemplated. With the wild ages beginning in the "twenties," such aspects on the American scene began to break and shatter under the released pressures of the war. Even then however, the problems were kept in hand due to the remaining vestiges of family unit connection.

With the advent of the second war and the overwhelming mass migrations of humanity, such mores as represented the family spirit of America were not only put to the severest test, but broke down in a terrifying manner. The Korean War only made things worse. Those in the newspaper business find it our unpleasant task to read, consider and analyze each story which comes over the wires concerning juvenile delinquency.

Last year, this study was increased to include the local scene. Quietly, reports have sifted into this office from all over the community. They are not pleasant reports. They indicate that Reverend McFadden was indeed correct.

There is no necessity to go into the brutal details about the antics of the young people. Nor is it necessary to condemn them as a generation, for they are not responsible in great part for their acts. Young people learn about life from their parents, or at least, they used to. What went on inside the family was echoed in the life of that family's younger generation. Aside for the usual percentage of "error," there was hardly a juvenile problem.

Things are vastly different today. The moral decline, (one could say, "dry rot") has set in here in this country. Monroe is not located in Zululand. There is no great wall of China stretching around the city limits of this community. What goes on elsewhere also happens here. Juvenile problems are no different in Monroe than in any other community. Maybe there are fewer instances, but one thing is certain, the rise of delinquency has been seen in this city. In comparison with other cities, it is far smaller, but it is still evident.

What is happening to the once evident spirit in Monroe? Is the city now so large that all signs of neighborliness are lost? Have the youngsters of all strata been released to their own whims? Reports indicate otherwise. However, in many families, a new kind of parental protection is shown the young people. It includes giving them "free reign" and the rights to do what they please.

Young people in many families in this nation, even this city are actually "displaced persons". They are left to their own wiles and wherefores while the parents go hither and yonder, everywhere but at home. In fact, the home is now a mere meeting place, a sort of dormitory where people sleep each night.

Or, in other cases, the home has become a glorified nightclub where other things happen. The effect this has on the young people is not only tremendous, but devastating.

The youth of today is going to be, or is supposed to be the intelligent and loyal American citizen of tomorrow. How can this be possible when there is no loyalty taught? Juvenile delinquency is a direct descendant of a loss of Community spirit.

Reverend McFadden was 100 per cent correct and deserves the praise of the entire community for bringing this worsening situation to light.

The Bricker Proposal— A Vital Necessity

Senator John Bricker of Ohio is again pushing his proposal for passage through the United States Senate so that it can eventually become an amendment to the Constitution.

The Bricker proposal ensures that no outside (or inside) force can tamper with the basic Constitutional freedoms of the United States. It ensures that the constitution will still be the governing set of laws in the United States. It curtails the right of treaty over and above the Federal constitution.

It will completely eliminate "U. N" interference with domestic affairs. It could negate the cruel status of forces treaty which turns American servicemen over to foreign powers. It will ensure that no "United Nations" can ever limit the freedoms of the American people and would automatically negate the wild Genocide Pact and Human Rights Covenant now being thrust at the United States.

It is a stab in the heart of those who seek to give the United States away to the "World" and a worst stab at the Communists who have hoped for such action. It will eliminate the possibility of secret agreements being made which conflict with the Constitution and should the Bricker proposal be passed, the United States Armed Services would in no way, be put under the "command" of the "United Nations."

It is basic protection for the American people.

The readers will remember that the Morning World supported the Senator's proposal when he submitted it last year only to see it destroyed. The readers will also remember those who opposed it. It is presumed that the same forces are in alignment against the Bricker proposal.

This year, the Morning World has come into possession of more startling and degrading information about those in high places who oppose such an amendment. A complete list of organizations in opposition to the proposal reads as an honor roll of supporters for the "U. N.".

In past experiences, the Morning World has learned that at least two of these groups have a sinister "ax to grind". This time last year, it was supposed but not proved that there was subversive support from American sources in opposition to the Senator's nation saving idea, but this year, there is not the slightest doubt in the world.

Should reports filter in that these organizations are active in opposition to the Bricker proposal, the Morning World will see (other papers throughout the nation) that such is known to the people.

Senator Bricker's proposal is a vital necessity.

We believe it should be passed.

Public Forum—Voice Of All The People

For Fluoridation

Monroe, La.

Editor, Morning World:

Wild accusations is the theme of those opposing fluoridation. There could not be a wilder statement than one appearing in a letter in Sunday's Public Forum. I refer to the remark that dentists fear to oppose fluoridation because the American Dental Association might revoke their license. Even if it were disposed to do so, the American Dentist Association does not have the power to revoke the license of any dentist.

As a matter of widely known fact and record, this highly ethical group encourages free thinking and expression — pro and con on any subject.

Such flimsy fantasies are typical of arguments used by those opposing fluoridation. They only serve to prove the lack of sound arguments against the measure.

Army Finally Discloses 'Who Promoted Peress'

Los Angeles.

Editor, Morning World:

I see by the headlines of Jan. 8 that the Army has finally decided to tell who promoted Peress and listed several names including Adams, who rode McCarthy so hard during the Army - McCarthy hearings. Also, that McCarthy says someone is still being protected, as unquestionably they are, and I'm using the plural purposely.

Someone, in fact more than one, is being protected from guilt worse than promoting Peress. They are guilty of protecting those who promoted a Communist. Can anyone for one moment doubt that both the Secretary of the Army, and the Commander - in - chief of the Army knew even before the trials took place just who promoted a Communist, knew even before the infamous White House meeting.

Yet both of them, and many others, egged the spectacle on. Why? Solely for the purpose of discrediting McCarthy? No. McCarthy was merely incidental. What they were after, all of them, is bigger game than any one senator. They were after, and still are, any one who dares to oppose and expose communism in government and-or elsewhere, not so much because they favor communism, though undoubtedly some do, but because they fear to have their past errors exposed to judgment.

Talk about the importance of "face" in the Orient! For "face" many of those we depend upon to protect us are willing to risk ultimate death for the Republic, the ultimate triumph of the Communists.

Yet, when one mentions that the president, who could scarcely have failed to know the score, even when he joined in and egged on the "get McCarthy" drive, is something less than the paragon of perfection and virtue, wisdom and light and judgment he was cracked up to be in Chicago.

I don't get it.

The 'Go Slow Policy'

Bastrop, La.

Editor, Morning World.

It has been several weeks since I have written you, but that doesn't signify that I have been asleep; I have been very much awake, and watching to see what's going on. Previously, you and I agreed with Senator Knowland that we should get the United States out of the United Nations and kick the United Nations out of the United States. Proponents of the U. N., contend that the U. N. is an indispensible asset to justice and world peace. Now then, the time has come to prove it's efficiency.

I understand that the U. N. delegate to Peiping to negotiate for the release of Americans held as prisoners of war, in violation of the Korean Armistice Treaty, "Dag Hammarskjold" is due to arrive in the United States today. This mission will be the supreme test of the efficiency of the U. N.

It's true that there have been claims and counter - claims made pro and con, the Chinese claim that they were spies; the Army disputes this claim. Now then, if I have been correctly instructed, the Air Force keeps a record of all the flight missions, who is sent out, where sent to, and for what purpose. If this be true, then it appears that the Air Force could easily prove whether or not those fliers were spies. If they were not spies, then why doesn't the U. S. file proceedings in the "World Court," the results always prove the efficiency of anything. If we fail in this undertaking, then I propose to do our best to set the world on fire or get the U. S. out of the U. N.

I understand that President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles are advocating a "take it easy and go slow policy." That sort of bunk will not relieve the tortures of hell that our boys are suffering in prison. I say that we have been gorgeously fed up on crap and crackerjack politics.

Peiping Another Yalta?

Ruston, La.

Editor, Morning World:

UN Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold has returned from Peiping with very little consolation. Was this another Yalta? Why did he condescend to this meeting anyway and why did he first make a trip to his native Sweden — which is dominated by Russia — before flying to Peiping?

Mr. Hammarskjold advises that "My talks with Chou En-lai were useful." For what? The talks at Yalta were useful, too, but useful mostly for Stalin. Evidently Mr. Hammarskjold and Chou En-lai are not enemies, they seem to see eye to eye. Nevertheless, the UN—which should be abolished or "renovated" — got our 11 boys in the mess and it's up to them to bring them back home.

If they can't do this, then the UN should be put out of this country. At present it is nothing but a hot-bed for subversives.

Juvenile Delinquency— 'The Shame Of America'

Monroe, La.

Editor, Morning World:

A published report in scope of community interest on juvenile delinquency can be found in the January 8, 1955 "Saturday Evening Post." The source of this enlightening data is the highest echelon of governmental structure — the United States Senate Judiciary investigating subcommittee. The compiled data is the results of sixteen months of intense investigation on a national basis.

The report will be presented in five parts in order to be inclusive of the vast complexed information secured. Statistics, trends, examples and prediction are elaborated upon to bring to the attention of the American people the significance of the future expectation from juvenile delinquency. The title, "The Shame of America," is sufficiently portrayed to understand that the writers, Richard Clendenen, executive director and Herbert W. Beaser, chief counsel of the subcommittee have a compiled senate report which warrants the attention and concentration of the American people in totality.

The first article depicts the scope of the problems of juvenile delinquency; its frequency and occurence in families from all walks of life in our social scale; yet the recordings offer positive as well as negative information which can be utilized and applied beneficial for all those concerned with the problems of children in general.

A task confronted by the subcommittee was the curtailment of the beliefs and fallacies that delinquency has "one main cause" and "one pat solution." Juvenile delinquency has for its source a complexed manifold matrix which needs the scientific endeavor of all the humanities — anthropology, psychiatry, sociology, psychology, etc. — and the experience and thinking of workers in the field, supplemented with the observations and experience of the public. It is everyone's problem, especially those who have children. As the article points out, it can happen to any child and adolescent.

I Pray for Me

I SAY this prayer for no one else . . . I say it just for me . . . And on the surface it may seem . . . I say it selfishly . . . But as my heart implores You, God . . . You know as well as I . . . There are so many ones for whom . . . I willingly would die . . . And so I say this prayer for me . . . To help me carry on . . . That through my efforts someone else . . . May reach a brighter dawn . . . That I may lift another soul . . . In sorrow or distress . . . And lead the lonely to a life . . . Of peace and happiness . . . I pray for me that I may be . . . Of service unto You . . . As I may help my neighbor in . . . The good that he would do.

1956 National Conventions To Be Aug., Sept.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Backing away from any innovation in long established political practice, the leaders of both political parties have suddenly been brought up short by considerations of necessity which convince them — in some instances against their will —that the national nominating conventions next year should be held in late summer and early autumn.

For more than a hundred years, national conventions have been associated with mid - summer discomfort, stifling heat, waving palm leaf fans and frantic calls for ice water. Just as the meeting date of congress, up until enactment of the Norris amendment in 1933, was still based on the time required to reach Washington by stage coach, so the conventions had to be held in midsummer because nation wide campaigns required at least twelve weeks to enable the presidential candidates to cover the United States by special train.

National Republican Chairman Leonard W. Hall and National Democratic Chairman Paul Butler have reached the conclusion that it is time to postpone the conventions. One or the other or both may change their position, but this seems to be it.

There is still another switch in prospect. For the last hundred years, since the Republican party held its first convention in 1856, the GOP has met first, followed at an interval — usually a week — by the Democrats. Now Chairman Butler talks about August 27, 1956 as a likely meeting date and the Republicans want to defer their gathering until September, probably September 10, since the first full week in that month begins with Labor Day, a holiday.

The reason for the revised outlook is not the heat, not any political advantage, but television. TV took over the conventions in 1952, almost without a by-you-leave. Like the exposure of the rear of an old battered building when a structure blocking the view is torn down to make a parking lot, the whole country saw the conventions as they are — an amalgamation of exhibitionists and near hysteria, with occasional edifying flashes of oratory and statesmanship.

Neither national chairman can guarantee that those gorish spectacles will not be repeated, but there is an old saying that if you wish to correct any outmoded habit or shabby practice, bring it into the public eye. The convention delegate who goes home to be told that he made a fool of himself and that his neighbors saw it on television is not likely to repeat his error.

TV exerts another controlling force. All the networks lose money in telecasting the show, because they can't find enough advertisers who want to plug their products in convention interludes. If the two parties meet in different cities, the cost is much greater, so their conventions in the same city seem assured.

The Republicans are again in a quandary over the city. Should they meet in Philadephia where the party named its first candidate, General John C. Fremont in 1856 (he was defeated by Democrat James Buchanan) or in Chicago, where they nominated Abraham Lincoln, their first winning candidate, in 1860? They plan to open their convention with a pageant celebrating their centennial, and Philadelphia is a better parade city. But it is under Democratic control, and Pennsylvania has a Democratic governor.

Chicago, most famous of political convention cities, wants the conventions, but some Democrats think that would again give Adlai Stevenson of Illinois an advantage for the nomination and some Republicans think of the Illinois metropolis as the strongest center of support of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.-Wis.)

Education Body Endorses Work Of Mrs. Clark

The Ouachita Educational Association has gone on record as endorsing the manner in which Mrs. Tina Clark carried out her duties as principal of Ransom school, it was announced yesterday.

Action of the association on the endorsement came January 10 at a meeting of the group, which is composed of teachers throughout the parish, following the filing of a petition by a group of West Monroyans to have Mrs. Clark transferred from Ransam school.

The association said:

"The Ouachita Education Association goes on record as endorsing the manner in which Mrs. Clark performs her duties as principal of Ransom school. We feel that the criticism and publication have been unjust, unmerciful and without merit."

Some 495 persons signed the petition against Mrs. Clark, according to a spokesman for the signers, following controversy in West Monroe over the handling of the case of little Joe Cooper, a Ransom student who attempted to recover his dog from school officials at the point of a shotgun.

The dog, untagged, had followed Joe to school and been taken into custody of the officials. A juvenile delinquency case against the boy, which stirred up nationwide controversy, has since been settled.

Colleges planning to send representatives to the Tech meeting are Louisiana State University, Southeastern, Southwestern, Centenary, Louisiana College, McNeese, Northeastern, and Sophie Newcomb.

Night Club Is Damaged By Fire

Fire early yesterday morning caused "extensive" damage to a DeSiard street night club, but was brought under control before it could reach the highly inflammable liquor stock.

The fire was at the Little Club at 2801 DeSiard, operated by J. P. Hardy. Dr. J. Q. Graves is owner of the building, firemen said.

According to Hardy, the blaze was discovered shortly after 3 a.m. yesterday when three customers of the place who had been there earlier in the night returned to pick up the automobile of one of them.

They saw the fire and telephoned from a service station for firemen.

Hardy said the blaze originated in the northeast corner of the night-club, apparently from a spark from a customer's cigarette or match.

It burned through the rear of the one - story frame building and into the attic over the main dance floor, causing extensive damage.

Firemen from stations three, five and seven brought it under control, however, before it could reach the bar. Some bottles of liquor were broken by water from fire hoses.

Hardy said he could not make an estimate of the damage caused in the blaze.

He said the night club would continue operations, since only the rear and part of the attic were burned.

Sewn beneath the pretty whirl of skirt is the perfect petticoat to mold its soft lines into gentle fullness. Mrs. Miller's original is a vivid turquoise and white imported silk, with pale taffeta petticoat. The designer also suggests shantung, cotton, sparkle-tone taffeta.

The bidding:

South, 1 spade; West, 2 hearts; North, 4 spades; East, pass.

South, 6 spades; West, pass; North, pass; East, pass.

Opening lead: King of clubs.

The "throwing a loser on a loser" play appears today in somewhat different form.

There was nothing reticent about South during the auction. North's four spade bid had promised a great many trumps and unbalanced distribution but not much in the way of high cards, so that a commitment to take 12 tricks involved a great deal of faith and hope. Nevertheless, we are not inclined to look upon it as a scientific atrocity. A jump to game is usually based partly upon possession of a singleton, and in this respect the North hand was a disappointment. A singleton heart, for example, and a value in diamonds is all declarer would require to give him a fighting chance.

When West opened the king of clubs and the dummy was spread, declarer was willing to take settlement, for it appeared that the loss of two heart tricks was inevitable. Upon analysis, however, he found that there were two possible plays for the hand, both of them valid. West's overcall at the level of two made it reasonably certain that East held no more than one heart so that the declarer for a moment considered the plan of clearing both hands of diamonds and clubs, extracting the adverse trumps and then leading a low heart from his own hand. This play would succeed if East had a singleton honor, because if West won the trick, East's high card would fall, and West must lead into declarer's ace-10 of hearts. If East is permitted to hold the trick, he must return a club, permitting South to ruff and discard a losing heart from dummy.

Declarer abandoned this play, considering that he had a better chance. He cashed the king and ace of diamonds and ruffed a diamond in dummy. He ruffed dummy's remaining club and drew the trumps in one round. He then cashed the ace of hearts, clearing East's hand of that suit. Then came the remaining diamond, and when West showed out, the contract was assured. Instead of ruffing, declarer discarded a losing heart on his diamond, and East was saddled with the lead, holding nothing but clubs.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Returned To His Wife To Head Off Divorce, Man Can't Live Without His Sweetheart

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a grandfather, 60, with three children and six grandchidren, none by my present wife Sara. We are of different faiths, and when we married 17 years ago we agreed not to ask each other to change. Some years I began to wish for someone to go with (or take) to church.

Then about six years ago I met Ruth, 16 years my junior, and I fel in love with her and saw her frequently. My wife learned of this and we separated four years ago, the separation agreement costing me $8,000.

Last June I thought I was ready to give up Ruth and return to my wife. I had an out-of-state divorce decree that lacked one day of being final, that my wife stopped when we reconciled (in a platonic way). But I haven't been able to give up Ruth. It seems (I am ashamed to say) that I don't know what I want. But one thing is certain—I am always happier with Ruth than with my wife.

He Can Hardly Live With Self

Certain questions worry me to the point where I can hardly live with myself, or sleep nights. 1. Is my wife motivated by love or is she after security? Had the divorce gone through, it would have cost me another $8,000 in payments, in response to her demands. She is 49, in good health, makes about $3,000 a year and owns a good car and a houseful of furniture and labor-saving devices Weren't her divorce terms exorbitant?

2. Is it the lesser of two evils to drop Ruth after taking six years of her time? She knew from the start I was married, though not happily. I am as sure as a person can be that I would be happy with her. I have talked to eight or 10 clergymen of different faiths and only two ventured to counsel me. One advised divorce; the other said the choice I made would be right, inasmuch as I've prayed over the problem for years.

Why my wife wants to live with a man who doesn't love her, unless it be for security, is beyond me. I don't intend to do anything for the time, and I will appreciate your views to guide me. —E. S.

Wife Manifests Real Attachment

DEAR E. S.: As for your wife's motives, she probably cares for you incurably, else she wouldn't cling so tenaciously, making you pay so dearly for your attempts to separate from, or divorce her. Her attitude towards money may be more politic than downright greedy. She may believe the best way to hold you is to lessen your financial appeal for other women, including Ruth.

Then, too, she probably figures that a bird-in-hand is worth two in the bush; and besides, she may aim to prove that no other woman can take her man away from her—and make it stick. Likely she is digging at Ruth indirectly, in taking you back, though aware of your conviction that you don't love her.

Is it the lesser of two evils to quit your girl friend? The question is rather beside the point of your basic problem—which has to do with your emotional instability. Even you are beginning to realize, at long last, that it isn't the women in your life, but your own weathervane character, that keeps you unfaithful. That's why you don't know which way to jump at present.

Weakness Turns Him To His Wife

You say you are always happier with Ruth than with your wife, and although this may signify natural congeniality, it is equally possible that Ruth's outsider status in the circumstances keeps her ever eager to please you on your terms. If she felt securely entrenched as a wife, she might reveal a different face, a more difficult personality, the exasperated real self she can't express now.

The fact that you've coasted back to your wife after a six years' fling suggests weakness on your part, and a prodigal son kind of yearning to relate yourself anew to strength and respectability. Evidently your wife symbolizes these sterling qualities, to your way of thinking—in contrast to Ruth, who is more like yourself, in your opinion. If you were a stronger man, you'd probably choose Ruth and be happy. But being a weakling, you lean reluctantly towards your unloved wife for a sense of certitude in life, it seems. —M. H.

Will Assemble At Legion Home For Stadium Election

There will be a meeting held at the American Legion home, Forsythe Avenue, Monday at 8 p.m. for the election of two members of the board of directors of the American Legion Stadium corporation.

All members are urged to participate.

Annexations May Double The Size Of West Monroe

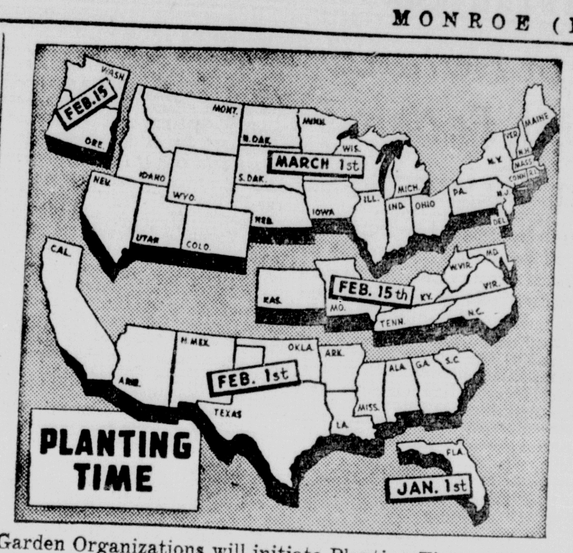
According to statements made by petitioners who are asking to withdraw from the Western Ouachita Water District, almost all of the outlying units which were included in the district at its creation on Nov. 10 are seeking annexation to the city of West Monroe.

If all units follow in the steps of McGuire units 7, 8, and 9, in petitioning, and being annexed to the city of West Monroe, the city will mushroom overnight to double its legal size. The 1950 census gave it a population of slightly over 10,000, but these areas will boost it to well over 20,000 persons, it is reported.

The petitioners indicated their willingness to be annexed at the Friday night police jury meeting at which they used additional benefits the city would offer as a reason why they wanted to withdraw from the water district.

Petitions asking withdrawal from the water district were filed by the nine units of the McGuire addition, including units 7, 8, and 9, and other areas, which are Splane addition, Sunshine Heights addition, Louisiana Power and Light Co. properties, the Mauldin tract, and a small section of land just west of the Splane addition.

The Ouachita Parish police jury took the request for changes in the boundary lines of the water district under advisement, and will render a decision after consultation with the district attorney.



Garden Organizations will initiate Planting Time activities on the date shown for each zone.

In 60 Days All Gardeners Will Be Busy In U. S.

Among the 75 or more "weeks" now more or less publicized in this country, why is there no "National Garden Week?"

The answer to this question is found in the sun, whose rays move north and south over the surface of the globe, bringing the changing temperatures and varying lengths of day which cause the four seasons.

In the United States, planting time starts in Florida two months earlier than in Minnesota, so there is no single week which could be celebrated as the beginning of the outdoor garden season throughout the country.

To wake up gardeners throughout America, the American Horticultural council is sponsoring an alarm clock schedule that will begin sounding in the south and follow the sun as it travels northward thawing out the ground, and releasing the energies which winter has kept locked up.

On the basis of U. S. Department of Agriculture records the country is divided into zones, in each of which the average date of the last killing frost in spring is approximately the same.

One month before this date is selected as the time for "Planting Time" in that zone. Seeds of hardy varieties may be sown; hardy plants may be transplanted; tender varieties may be started under protection, and merchants of garden goods should make these available to their customers.

Since it is considered impractical to divide a state into several zones, each state has been considered as a unit, and assigned a date for the beginning of "Plnting Time" which represents the average climate of the whole state, although it may not be exactly right for either the earliest or latest sections of the state area. The dates assigned to the various states on this basis are as follows:

January 1—Florida.

February 1 — Alabama, Arkansas, Arizona, California, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Texas.

February 15 — Kansas, Kentucky Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina, Oregon, Tennessee, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia.

March 1 — Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York North Dokato, Ohio, Pennesylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Wisconsin, Wyoming.

The Men's Garden clubs of America, National Garden Writers' Association, and many other horticultural organizations have endorsed the Planting Time programme and urge that all home gardeners join in observing it.

Stocks Lower In Week's Trading; Losses Moderate

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—A rampaging rally quietly faded away. That is the story of the stock market this week.

Many were guessing about what comes next. The market broke badly last week after the Federal Reserve Board raised the requirements for buying and selling stocks on credit.

The move was a warning to Wall Street about the booming bull market in stocks that has been going on for 16 months.

A week ago Friday, the recovery from that break started, and it continued strongly Monday. Some 75 per cent of the previous loss was retraced in those two days.

But on the remaining four days of this week, the stock market almost marked time as it drifted lower.

The Associated Press Average declined 50 cents on the week and closed at $152.30. The average stands $1.30 above the low point of last week's break.

Brokers expect a test soon of the lows. If the market follows along the way brokers feel it should, there will be a selloff to determine whether there is enough buying support at the lower prices to form a base for a rally.

If that support appears before the market falls below its previous lows, then a rally should be in order. If not, then a new and lower base point would be in the making.

Scouting Official To Visit Monroe

Charles S. Griffin, assistant director of rural scouting service, National Council, Boy Scouts of America, will visit in the Monroe area for three days beginning Monday, Jack E. Pankey, scout executive, Ouachita Valley Council announced Saturday. He is coming to Monroe from his headquarters, New Brunswick, N. J.

Griffin has confirmed Pankey's request for the visit in a letter received this past week from the national organization's headquarters.

The executive will meet with the staff of the local council Monday morning and then hold an organizational and extension meeting Monday night at the Frances hotel.

Tuesday he will go into the northern and eastern districts for a meeting with committees in Bastrop beginning at 7 p.m. Tommy Lewis, field executive for the two areas, will accompany Griffin on this part of the tour.

The final day, Griffin will work with Jim Simpson, field executive for the northwestern and southwestern districts, until time for his departure to El Dorado, Ark.

Fight To Exempt Natural Producers From Federal Control On In Congress

By CHARLES HASLET

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—The opening shot was fired in Congress this week in a move to nullify the Supreme Court's decision bringing independent natural gas producers under federal regulation.

Rep. Ikard (D-Tex) told the House he would introduce a law to write a specific provision into the Natural Gas Act to exempt production and gathering of natural gas from federal control.

The court held last summer that the Federal Power Commission (FPC) has authority over the price of all natural gas flowing into interstate commerce. Independent producers contend the gas act was not intended to so provide.

Ikard said Congress must quickly amend the act to make clear that production and gathering of natural gas is exempt from FPC jurisdiction.

"Production of natural gas does not possess the attributes of a public utility and it is one of the most speculative and competitive enterprises in our whole American economy in which there exists not the slightest hint or suspicion of monopoly," he said.

Ikard said that if regulation over independent gas producers should prevail, the FPC might later take over control of the oil industry.

The Texan had planned to introduce his legislation last Monday, but delayed it pending further study of the exact language.

Scores of independent producers were represented at an FPC hearing called to hear views on the methods to be used in regulation of wellhead prices of gas going into interstate commerce.

In a brief filed with the FPC for thousands of independent producers, a group of trade organizations argued that free competition already has made natural gas the "biggest bargain in fuels" and no federal control is necessary.

"The present prices of gas are the result of competition and competition alone," said the brief. "For more than 25 years competition and the law of supply and demand have made gas the cheapest fuel on the market today."

Joining in the brief were Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Asn., Illinois Oil & Gas Assn., Rocky Mountain Oil & Gas Assn., Oil Producer Agency of California, New Mexico Oil & Gas Assn., North Texas Oil & Gas Assn., and West Central Texas Oil & Gas Assn.

The brief said the "ultimate solution lies with Congress." It declared that because of keen competition among producers, their prices cannot be fixed on a utility rate basis.

It called gas production strictly intrastate.

The brief also said that long term contracts with producers which pipeline operators require in order to finance operations properly no longer would be practical under federal price control.

And it said no producer is going to risk capital in wildcat drilling for gas unless he is assured of a return which justifies the gamble.

It suggested that the FPC should accept rates now in effect in thousands of contracts because they have proved "fair."

Sunray, Mid-Continent Merger Would Form New Giant Oil Corporation

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—UP—Oil men viewed with keen interest Saturday the announcement that merger talks are underway between Sunray Oil Corp., and Mid-Continent Petroleum Corp.

Such a merger would create a new oil giant with total assets of more than $475 million and would represent one of the biggest oil deals in recent history.

Both Sunray and Mid-Continent are integrated oil companies, conducting their own producing, refining, transporting and marketing operations.

The disclosure that merger talks between the two oil firms were underway was made here Friday by Clarence Wright, president of Sunray.

Stocks of both oil companies have been strong recently on the New York stock exchange.

Wright, although confirming that negotitaions were underway, declined to give any details at this time.

Oil men generally agreed with Wright's contention the merger would prove beneficial to both firms.

"It's a logical move from the standpoint of operating efficiency," a top oil man said.

It was pointed out that Sunray has crude oil production in excess of its refining capacity while Mid-Continent must buy in the open market a large part of the crude oil it processes.

"The merger would bring about a more balanced internal supply-demand situation for both spokesman said.

Industry spokesmen declined to speculate how the Justice Department might react to the merger.

Both Sunray and Mid-Continent have their operating offices in Tulsa, Okla.

Sunray has refineries at Duncan and Allen, Okla., and at Santa Maria, Calif. Mid-Continent's refinery is located at West Tulsa.

Simulated Drill Operation To Be Shown In Houston

An actual simulated off-shore drilling operation in model scale dimension wil be one of the big features of the forthcoming International Oil Exposition to be held at the Houston Coliseum May 3-8, it was revealed by Duane Ellis, president of the first Houston oil show in 16 years.

Ellis was in receipt of a letter from R. E. Murphy, publicity director of the Levingston Shipbuilding Company of Orange, Texas, one of nearly 300 exhibitors signed up for the exposition thus far. Murphy described his firm's exhibit as a scale model one-half inch to the foot of a 260-foot offshore drilling tender complete with drilling platform in simulated drilling operations and anchored to a scale model one - half inch to the foot of a 174-foot oil well derrick.

The entire exhibit will be installed in a large water tank. The drilling operations will be simulated even to a helicopter in position and complete with lighting system to the extent of an electrically illuminated wind sock.

Ellis said that plans were also under way to put up a drilling rig near the front entrance of the Coliseum and simulate an actual oil drilling operation.

The international Oil Exposition will feature various phases of the oil industry, including oil drilling, production, pipe line, petro chemical, refining and manufacturing.

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

The Cotton States League meeting at Vicksburg today should be only a formality. We expect to be able to say tomorrow that the hill city of the Mississippi will be the new domicile of owner C. B. Rawling's Meridian Millers.

Rawlings owns the Miller franchise and it has been common news for some time that he has been dissatisfied at Meridian and more than willing to move his baseball holdings to Vicksburg. Judge Emmett Harty, league president of Greenville, has called his directors to Vicksburg today to settle on the proposed franchise shift. Manager Ed Head, Saul Adler, and R. D. Farr Jr., will be representing the interests of the Twin Cities Sports at the session and have left no doubt that they like prospects of putting another Cotton States entry into Vicksburg which last was a member of the circuit in 1941.

Vicksburg will serve to give a more compact league with less traveling expenses for the member clubs. Nearness of another contender can stimulate more rivalry with club fans following their team on the invasion trips. The old Vicksburg Bills used to bring a lot of their home customers to Monroe, and likewise the addicts here moved to Vicksburg when our club was there.

President Lewis C. Slater of Northeast Louisiana State College let drop a choice piece of news at the Northeast football banquet Friday night when he revealed negotations are under way to bring Northeast up to par with the coaching staffs of their Gulf States Conference rivals by hiring two new assistant coaches. For years Jim Malone coached football with token assistance from grads or no more than one regular assistant. When Devone Payne took over as head coach of football last fall he brought in George Luffey as a regular assistant and called upon Athletic Director Arnold Kilpatrick, the basketball coach, for some assistance in football.

The announcement by President Slater indicated one of the men in mind will be a fulltime assistant to Payne, and the other assisting in football and basketball. No names were named, following the usual policy of schools to get a coach under contract first.

At the same banquet Athletic Director Kilpatrick said the 1955 football schedule for Northeast is about complete. He said the Tribe will be dropping two distant opponents and adding a couple of about the same caliber a little closer home. He wasn't ready to make any definite announcements on the changes, but by dropping "distant rivals" we have in mind Western Kentucky and possibly Alabama State of Livingston who have been the most remote schools on the slate for the last few years.

And Coach Payne predicted a better brand of football at Northeast next fall "even if we have only the same boys back." The Tribe isn't losing any strength by graduations and a year more of experience means improvement in itself. In addition, the Redskins are looking for some promising new recruits.

Sam Rubin Jr., chairman of the March of Dimes parade for Monroe, has been trying to work same angles to get publicity for the drive on the sports pages. He hit this week at the Monroe Bowling Center when Keith Moore, manager of the alleys, announced all profits from bowling operations next Saturday will be donated to the March of Dimes. Moore usually has a pretty active day on Saturdays, and next weekend should be his best. The bowlers can use the day to tune up for the approaching city championship tournaments and at the same time help a good cause.

The touring professional basketball teams are working south again, and cage fans of this area get a chance to see some of them in the next few weeks. The West Monroe Quarterback Club will introduce Hazel Walker's Arkansas Travelers, an all-girl combination playing men's rules against men's teams, in the West Monroe High gymnasium February 19. Next Thursday night the All-American Red Heads, another girl's combination, will be in Louisiana Tech gym at Ruston for a date with the Choudrant Cavaliers, an independent men's club. Then there's the Vagabond Kings, an all-star men's combination that's headed this way. We haven't heard of any billing for them yet, but King Boring of Dearborn, Mich., says he's available for games in this area February 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, and 9. Two Louisiana girls—Alice Hammond of Baskin and Zethel Keith of Martin—are traveling with the Red Heads.

Ogden Boys Lose In Tourney Final; Also Rebel Girls

By TED HECKATHORN

The LaSalle of Olla quintet, and the Baskin girls, emerged as champions of their respective divisions last night at the Ouachita gymnasium, as the annual Ouachita basketball tournament came to a successful close.

LaSalle gained the final by beating West Monroe, and met Ogden, which had defeated the Ouachita High five earlier in the day.

The LaSalle-Ogden tussle was a close one until late in the third quarter, when the Tigers forged into a six-point lead, the widest gap of the game until that time, and increased it steadily during the fourth.

L. Russell was high-point man for the winners, sinking nine goals and a free throw for a total of 19. Five of Russell's net swishers came in the third quarter, and were largely responsible for the champion's surge.

Noel Fain, chief Ogden rebounder, became the game-high player, with ten goals and three free tosses, for 23 points.

Box scores:

Baskin had no trouble winning the title in the girls' bracket, by rolling over the shorter West Monroe six, 57-28.

Betty Ruth Jarrette, a deadeye from her pivot post, chalked up 14 goals and nine charity tosses for a game-high total of 37 points. Little John Ann Painich was high for the Rebs, with nine goals and a free throw, for 19.

Baskin led at halftime, 35-8; and at the end of the third, 48-13.

Ouachita lost their first game of the season on the Bry St. court, when the rangy Ogden five defeated them in the 1:15 semi-final, 48-45.

Thomas was high point man for the Lions, with 12; and Fain led Ogden with 21. Ouachita led by two points at the end of the first period, and 19-18 at intermission, but fell behind in the third and fourth quarters, when Ogden scored 26 markers to their 30.

West Monroe's quintet trailed all the way in their LaSalle semi, 16-8 at the end of the first; 35-18 at halftime; and 52-34 at the end of the third. Huckabay was high for the Rebel lads, with 18 points; and K. Winberry had 28 for the Tigers.

In the first girls' semi-final tussle Saturday Miss Jarrette scored 41 points to lead the Baskin girls to a 64-30 semi-final win over Holly Ridge. Jerry McManus was high for Holly Ridge with nine.

In the other girls' semi-final West Monroe gained revenge for the Tuesday night defeat at the hands of the Ouachita girls with a 39-25 win. John Ann Painich had 16 points to lead the girl Rebels, and Charlotte Brown Simmons had 11 for the Lions.

The girls' consolation saw Ouachita come from behind to down the Holly Ridge sextet, 40-25. Behind 16-12 at intermission, Betty Lee and Peggy Long each scored eight points for Ouachita in the third quarter to set the pace for the Lions. Miss Lee was high with a 20-point total. B. McManus had 16 to lead the Eagles.

Ouachita again defeated West Monroe in the boys' consolation, this time by two points, 47-45. Behind at halftime, 22-18, the Lions were sparked by playmaker Alvin Thomas who scored 16 of his 27 points in the third period. Dennis Fields was high for the Rebs with 12, while Gary Huckaby, the leading scorer for the Rebs during the tournament, was held to six.

The boys' all-tournament teams, selected by floor officials, had Noel Fain, Ogden; Kent Winberry, LaSalle; Glen Williams, Ogden; Glynn Russell, Ouachita; and Gary Huckabay, West Monroe on the first five; and Johnny Maroney, Ouachita; Leon Sykes, LaSalle; May, Grayson; Richard Mitchell, Calhoun; and Bob Loftin, Bastrop; on the second team.

The girls' first team was composed of Pat Weems, West Monroe; Betty Ruth Jarrette, Baskin; Geraldine McManus, Holly Ridge; Frances Dear, Baskin; Martha Aulds, West Monroe; and Armande McHenry, Ouachita. On the second team were B. McManus, Holly Ridge; Charlotte Simmons, Ouachita; John Ann Painich, West Monroe; Jackie Waters, Crowville; Patsy Jarrette, Baskin; and I. Donald, Holly Ridge.

First team members in both divisions were awarded gold miniature basketballs, while silver miniatures will be mailed to all second team players.

Redskin Cagemen Await Big Date With Bulldogs

Coach Arnold Kilpatrick's cagemen, currently riding the crest of one of their best seasons in school history, go to Ruston Tuesday night to resume Gulf States Conference competition with the Louisiana Tech Bulldogs, one of the conference powerhouses. The Redskins will take a 13-6 season record and a 3-1 conference record into the fray, which may well be one of the most important contests in determining the ultimate champion.

Louisiana Tech, victors over the Northwestern Demons, Southwestern, and McNees, is also enjoying one of its best years under Coach Cecil Crowley. Always tough on their own Memorial gymnasium court, the Bulldogs are one of the Northeast State team's most difficult hurdles of the season. If the Indians can win this road game it will go far in enhancing their championship chances. If they lose, it will give them two conference defeats and definitely place them behind in the race for the crown.

Northeast State will also play two other road games next week. On Friday the Tribesmen journey to Little Rock, Ark., for a non-conference tilt with Little Rock College. On Saturday night they will go to nearby Jonesboro, Ark., for a return match with Arkansas State. The Redskins played the Arkansas State Indians on January 4 in Monroe and beat them 104-91 in one of the finest performances Coach Kilpatrick's men have produced this year. The following week the Monroe squad will resume conference play with a brace of three home games in a row, including two G. S. C. tilts with Southwestern and McNeese State.

Many students and Monroe area sports fans are expected to make the trip to Ruston to see Tuesday night's battle between Northeast Louisiana's two top college teams. The fact that both schools, only 30 miles apart have come up with top cage teams this year adds to the interest. Both Coach Crowley and Kilpatrick's squads are definitely contenders this year.

Mel Gibson and Bill Bradley, the Gulf States Conference's two leading scorers are expected to again pace the Northeast State attack.

Pro Gridders End Season In Own Bowl Tilt Today

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15 (AP) — Coach Buck Shaw of the West's grid team that faces the East Sunday in the Pro Bowl game, says he's going to open up with Y. A. Tittle at quarterback flanked by his San Francisco '49er teammates, John Henry Johnson and Joe Perry, plus Doak Walker of the Detroit Lions.

"That will be our starting backfield," said Shaw. "I intend to alternate Tittle with Norman Van Brocklin, Los Angeles Ram quarterback. When Van Brocklin is calling signals he will have Skeet Quinlan and Dan Towler, also of Los Angeles, plus Buddy Young of the Baltimore Colts."

Shaw will have as his starting line Lou Creekmur of Detroit and Bill Bishop of the Chicago Bears at tackles; Duane Putnam of Los Angeles and Bruno Banducci of San Francisco at guards; Leon McLaughlin of Los Angeles at center, and the ends will be San Francisco's Billy Wilson and Harlon Hill of the Chicago Bears. They will be spelled by Los Angeles' all-pro end, Bob Boyd.

Coach Jim Trimble of the East squad told writers he may start his own Philadelphia quarterback, Adrian Burk, because the Eagle has had much more practice here than Otto Graham of the Cleveland Browns.

The East will most likely start Pete Pihos of Philadelphia and Danta Lavelli of Cleveland at ends; Lou Groza of Cleveland and Lum Snyder of Philadelphia at tackles; Abe Gibron of Cleveland, Bill Austin of New York at guards; Frank Gatski of Cleveland at center; Ollie Matson of the Chicago Cards, Kyle Rote of New York, Eddie Price of New York, and either Burk or Graham, in the backfield.

The spectators in the Memorial Colosseum not only will be treated to an afternoon of football but will have a track event thrown in— at no extra charge. Before the kickoff ace miler Wes Santee, who has come close on other occasions, will again try to crack the 4-minute mile.

After this event Santee will fly to Philadelphia to run the night of Jan. 21 in the Philadelphia Inquirer meet.

Skipper's Ho-Made Cream picked up a little slack to increase their lead in the Business Women's Bowling League although held to a two out of four point split with Ouachita National Bank while Tony's Redwood Resturant dropped their four points. "Skipper" Perkins, taking charge for her team, had a very nice game of 163 and just missing the 400 weries by two pins. Little Dottie Kulcke, also getting a 163 game along with a 421 series, led the banking girls.

Falstaff Beer jolted Tony's Redwood Resturant in their chase to over come Skipper's Ho-Made as Ave Brister was leading the Falstaff team to a clean sweep of their four points with a 146 and a 399 series. Betty Heidner, posting a 171 game and a 428 series, was best for Tony's.

Public Loan stopped Delson's Shoes three points to one as Mann was showing a 120 game with a 395 series. Golden, getting a 117 game and Dot Durham, having a 317 series, led the shoe girls.

Aaron Stout Insurance bested four points as Lillian Ballard was breaking through with a 132 game along with J. Everritt's 361 series. Thompson, throwing a 120 game mixed with a 337 series, was tops for Brown Container.

Credit Bureau pasted a three out of four point loss on Negley Bag and Paper as Marion Slavant was hitting a 149 game and a 365 series. Betty Kutz and Hazel Chambliss deadlocked for high game at 123 with June Ferrington getting high series with a 347 to spark Negley.

First Methodist of West Monroe swept their four points with St. Paul's Methodist as B. Clay was shooting a 189 game and a 448 series for St. Pau. Keith Moore hit a 161 game and a 446 series to lead the Methodist.

First Presbyterian bested Covenant Presbyterian three points to one with W. Bell shooting a 198 game and O. K. Davis having a 523 series. John Yarbrough was in the bowling mood and to prove his point with games of 207-205-173 for a big fat series of 583 for Covenant.

St. Paschal's, headed by Peggy Grigsby and her smooth rolling ball, took three out of four points from Memorial Presbyterian. Grigsby had a nice single game of 209 and a 488 series to go with it. B. Scott, throwing 174 game and a 438 series, was best for Memorial.

Brito, Like LeBaron, Returns To Redskins

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Gene Brito, who jumped to Canadian football a year ago, returned to the Washington Redskins today and signed up for the 1955 season.

Brito, an outstanding defensive end, said he was "happy to be back."

He was the second of two Washington players who quit the Redskins when they were coached by Curly Lambeau and shifted to the Calgary Canadian club. Now that Lambeau has been replced by Joe Kuharich. Brito and the other jumper, Eddie LeBaron, have returned.

LeBaron, a quarterback, and Brito both played college ball for west coast teams, Lebaron for College of the Pacific and Brito for Loyola of Los Angeles.

Michigan, Army Tilt Moved To Ann Arbor

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 15 (AP)—The University of Michigan announced today its football game with Army next fall will be played in Ann Arbor instead of New York as previously announced.

A conflict with the World Series had been feared. The football game is scheduled for Oct. 8.

The switch gives Michigan seven home games in a nine-game schedule. It sets up the possibility of an all-time Michigan attendance record.

Tag Match, Semi, Two Short Bouts Tuesday

At no increase in prices, a four-match wrestling card, featuring four different grapplers, is on tap at Kallio's Arena Tuesday night.

In the main match, "Wild Bill" Steddum and Rasputin, the Mad Russian, team up for the second consecutive week as a tag duo; this time meeting Pat "Big Boy" Cronin and Danny Dusek.

The semi-final, like the main, will require two falls to win, and will pit young Ken Hill against "Mr. X", a Texan friend and well-known tag mate of Steddum's. X's real monicker is Rudy Sota.

Two one-fall, ten minute time limit preliminaries, between Steddum and Dusek, and Rasputin and Cronin, or vice-versa, will precede the semi; and all intermissions between falls and bouts will be five minutes, instead of the usual ten.

West Monroyan Bill Barney is slated to referee all matches.

Cronin, a former villain who was so bad he earned the title, "King of the mat villains" is a reformed wrestler of late, and has been pairing with Jack Curtis against Steddum and other "meanies."

Tuesday night, he gets his first taste of Rasputin in the local ring, and from the looks of the Russky's style last week, Cronin will need his combined good and bad tactics to hold his own.

Hill, in the semi-final, made his debut here last Tuesday, and made a good impression on the ringsiders with his youth and ability. His opponent, the barrel-chested bullet-head from Texas, is a powerful matman, and never misses a trick, legal or illegal. He has never appeared here, outside of the short prelims, in a solo bout, and it will be interesting to see how he makes out by himself without Steddum standing by ready for a tag.

GETS RAISE

DETROIT, Jan. 15 (AP)—Harvey Kuenn, brilliant young shortstop of the Detroit Tigers, today signed his 1955 contract for a "substantial raise."

Sports Will Pull Fences; Await Yankee Tie-Up Soon

In expectations of reaching a complete working agreement with the New York Yankees within another week, the board of directors of the Twin Cities Sports of the Cotton States League yesterday announced full scale planning for the 1955 baseball season with the decision to shorten the fences along the left and right field foul lines at Legion Memorial Stadium here.

Manager Ed Head said the tie-up with the Yankees has been depending on advanced sale of season book tickets, and it was declared that the sale has been going good and that "we expect to be able to announce complete arrangements with the Yankees within another week."

At the same time it was revealed an error in printing has placed 72 tickets in the season books on sale. The mistake was discovered after several books had already been sold, but the directors have decided to leave all tickets, good for any home games of the Sports except the regular Legion Night program, intact, giving their fans the benefit of the error.

However, it was pointed out that at the current rate of sales that the special offer of season books at $15 for bleachers and $20 for grandstand (72 tickets to each book) would probably be withdrawn from the market before the season opens. Fans without advanced ticket purchases will be required to buy the usual game - to - game tickets at the gate at the old rates. Season books, which will save more than half the usual fare, may be purchased by calling Manager Head at 3-9461 or Saul Adler at 3-8805.

It was also announced that sale of box seats, with alterations from past years, will also get underway immediately. The boxes, good for every home game, including playoffs, have been selling for $100 for six seats. The number of seats per box is being reduced to four for $50 per box. Old box holders are being allowed time to take up option on their usual boxes, but applications for any and all boxes are now being accepted.

Manager Head said the fences in right and left field at Legion Memorial Stadium are to be shortened by popular demand of fans. Right now the foul lines run 350 feet from home plate to the fences and graduate upward to 400 feet in deep center.

The fence will be moved in to a point 320 feet on each foul line and graduate out to the 372-foot signs.

No auxiliary fences will be constructed. The usual fence will simply be taken down and moved in to preserve the looks of the park. The shortened fences, still deepening sharply to the 372-foot point, will offer a test for pitching and batting skill, Head pointed out.

"A good pull hitter can get those homers," Head said. "But a good pitcher, who can force them to hit to center field, will have the advantage."

Middlecoff First 2nd 69 To Grab Los Angeles Lead

3 Lesser Knowns Only One Stroke Off In 2nd Spot

By BOB MYERS

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif., Jan. 15 (AP)—Former National Open champion Cary Middlecoff stroked through mud and rain today to take the lead with his second straight 69 and a 36-hole score of 138 in the $15,000 Bing Crosby Pro-Amateur Golf Tournament.

The 1949 U. S. winner moved into a one-stroke lead over three lesser known professionals for the final round of the 14th annual 54-hole event tomorrow.

Tied at 139 were Stan Leonard, Vancouver, B. C., the co-leader in the first round; Bob Rossburg, San Francisco, and distance hitter Mike Souvhak, Durham, N. C. Leonard had 66-73, Rossburg 72-67, and Souchak 72-67.

Scores mounted as the daylong rain fell and among the casualties was the other co-leader of the first round, little Jerry Barber, Los Angeles. Barber dripped in with a 7-over-par 79 for 145.

Still very much in the battle was Gene Littler, Palm Springs, who shot his second straight 70 for a 140, two off the pace.

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, winner of the big show in the 1954 tournament—the fight for the $2,500 top money for the top pro—got back on his game today with a 69, but his first round 76 left him still far afield.

Pros:

Cary Middlecoff, Kalmesha Lake, N. Y., 69-69—138

Ferriday To Honor Its Grid Champs Tomorrow

FERRIDAY, La., Jan. 15 (Special.)—The annual football banquet honoring members of the Class A state champions of Louisiana for 1954, the Ferriday High School Bulldogs and their coaches, will be held Monday night in the local high school gymnasium with a capacity crowd expected.

The Bulldogs bowled over 10 regular season opponents and three play-off opponents in rolling to their first undefeated, and untied season and their second consecutive state championship.

The Class A championship trophy will be awarded by T. H. (Muddy) Waters, commissioner of the Louisiana High School Athletic Association and will be accepted by Leo Young, Jr., and Don Horton, co-captains. Individual trophies will be awarded by the school to James Joplin, Max Fugler, Frank Brocato, and Guy Hill, Ferriday players who made the 1954 All-State squad.

The All-State presentation will be made by Paul Martin, sports editor of the News-Star—World, Monroe, who is president of the Associated Press Sports Writers Association that selects the All-State teams.

Presentation of the John Fudickar trophy to the team's most valuable player will be made by Gene Taylor, outgoing president of the Ferriday Quarterback Club. Coach James Otto Lancaster will award varsity letters to those players who participated in the required number of periods of varsity games.

A special guest at the banquet will be Sid Fournet, L. S. U.'s All-American tackle.

The Ferriday Quarterback Club has been fortunate in securing as principal speaker for the banquet, Ed McKeever, of Baton Rouge. McKeever is well known to sports fans as an outstanding football player and coach.

While backfield coach at the University of Notre Dame he developed such All-American quarterbacks as Johnny Lujack and Angelo Bartelli. He was head coach at the University of Notre Dame in 1944. He had coached two years at Texas Tech and two years at Boston College before going to Notre Dame, and in all four of those years his teams were invited to participate in bowl games.

McKeever was head football coach at the University of San Francisco in 1945 and won the Pacific Coast championship. He also coached professional football teams in various towns.

Kallio Matches Garris Against Houston Boxer

Promoter Gus Kallio last night announced he has signed Devayne Garris, Farmerville middleweight, and "Dope" Harris, Houston, Tex., for a ten-round main event on a boxing card schedule for January 31 at his Walnut Street arena here.

Garris, who holds a knockout victory over light heavyweight Charles Whitaker of Bastrop, decisioned Gilbert De La Garza, San Antonio, in his last appearance here early in December.

Harris, a barefooted scrapper, recently won on a Birmingham, Ala., card with a knockout.

Scimitar Upset Winner Of Rich Tropical Event

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 15 (AP)—Scimitar, a muddy gray 5-year-old horse who hadn't won a race since 1953, surprised form players today when he took the $41,500 Tropical Handicap, closing feature at Tropical Park race track, before a crowd of 14,379.

Scimitar, carrying 113 pounds and handled expertly by jockey Joe Culmone, survived a stretch battle with Helianthus to win by a head in a driving finish.

Time for the mile and an eighth was 1:50. Over a fast track, two seconds more than the track record set by Westminister eight years ago.

Valley Farms Impasse was third, a neck behind Helianthus. Capeador, winner of this race a year ago, was fourth, another neck away. Twelve went to the post in this race, the richest Tropical Park ever had.

Scimitar paid $14.10, $6.80 and $4.50 for a $2 ticket. Helianthus returned $8.10 and $4.90 and show money on Impasse was $4.20.

The girls were tied 33-all at the end of the regulation game. Tatum led the Newellton girls while Sue Horton led Ferriday with 14 points.

Guy Hill led Ferriday with 24 points while Jerry Head led Newellton with 20 points.

Beaumont's Ills High On Docket For Texas Loop

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 15 (AP)—An executive session on the status of the Beaumont franchise opens the annual winter meeting of Texas Baseball League executives here tomorrow.

Allen Russell, Beaumont president, has proposed that the city purchase Stuart Stadium for $165,000, then lease it back to the Exporters.

Russell has admitted frankly that the club's financial picture is such that failure of the plan probably would force transfer of the franchise.

League officials want to have another city in mind—just in case.

They have indicated one or two prospective sites may be picked tomorrow for use in an emergency.

"The league must protect itself," one official said. "It is getting very late."

Wichita Falls, a former Texas League power but now open territory, is expected to receive top consideration.

Corpus Christi probably would move into the top spot except for complicating baseball rules. Corpus Christi is in the Big State League and the deadline for drafting of territory from a league of lower classification was Dec. 1.

The only way the Texas League could acquire Corpus Christi for the 1955 season would be through successful negotiations with the Big State League.

Beaumont Mayor Elmo Beard and a majority of the city council have stated they would vote in favor of holding a special bond election to buy the stadium. Russell plans to present the petition to them Tuesday.

The league schedule will be adopted at an afternoon open session. The season opens April 6 with the northern teams starting a six-day road trip in the south. The season closes Labor Day.

Natchez Cagers Beat Vidalia In Overtime

VIDALIA, La., Jan. 15 (Special)—Southpaw Billy Lambert pumped in a field goal in the last 45 seconds of an overtime game Thursday afternoon to give Cathedral of Natchez a 43 to 41 victory over Vidalia in a battle of "C" basketball teams.

The score was tied 40-all at the end of the regulation game played at the city auditorium.

Bill McDonough, Cathedral, and Jim Trindle, of Vidalia, each scored a free throw in the overtime period to keep the score deadlocked until Lambert fired in his two pointer.

The win gave Cathedral a split in the two game series with Vidalia.

Lambert led Cathedral with 15 points. James Williams, who fouled out in the overtime period, led Vidalia with 21 points, followed by Trindle with 15.

Aggie Aquatics Defeat Demons By 56-28 Edge

The visitors won only the 1-meter diving and 140-yard freestyle and 200-yard backstroke events.

Nats Cut Loose Colorful Cuban, Sign 4 Players

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—The end of the major league trail came today for Conrado (Connie) Marrero, the cigar - smoking Cuban who has been one of the most colorful players in the big time over the past half dozen years.

The Washington Senators announced Marrero had been given his unconditional release.

After first saying he had been optioned to the Charleston, W. Va., club of the American Association. At the same time, the club announced the signing of four players for next season.

Marrero, whose age is listed in the record books as 39 but who probably is close to a decade older than that, had his poorest season last year when he won three and lost six, winding up with an earned run average of 4.77.

Graduating to the Senators from Havana in 1950, Marrero delights Griffith Stadium crowds with his clowning antics on the pitching mound and his would-be ferociousness at the plate.

He was always a fast starter but cooled off considerably later on. In 1951, he won his first six games and wound up with an 11-9 mark. In 52, he won his first four and finished with a record of 11-8.

His greatest pitching performance came in April 26, 1951, when he threw a one-hitter at the Philadelphia Athletics, winning 2-1 with the lone safety off his delivery a home run by Barney McCoskey.

The Senators announced the signing of catchers Bruce Edwards and Steve Korcheck, shortstop John Kline and pitcher Johnny Schmitz.

Arkansas Okays Mitchell Choice For Head Coach

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 15 (AP)—Jack Mitchell, 30-year-old head coach at Wichita University and a former assistant under DeWitt Weaver at Texas Tech, was named officially here today as University of Arkansas football coach at $12,000 a year.

He succeeds Bowden Wyatt, who walked out on a five-year contract after two years to become head coach and assistant athletic director at his alma mater, the University of Tennessee.

Mitchell's former head assistant, Pete Tillman, will succeed him at Wichita.

Mitchell, a former All-Big Seven Conference quarterback who set all sorts of records with the Oklahoma Sooners, was drawn into the spotlight after a strong recommendation by Weaver, Arkansas' original choice for the job.

The deal was closed at a Friday afternoon meeting at Fayetteville when Mitchell and members of the faculty committee on athletics were mutually impressed.

At Oklahoma University they called Mitchell "General Jack" because of his superb leadership on the field.

Mitchell's record as a coach is impressive. Two years ago he took over a Wichita team that had been doormat of the Missouri Valley Conference many years. His first season he won four, lost four and tied one.

Then last season his split-T offense caught fire. His Shockers rolled over nine opponents and lost only one game. He won conference "Coach of the Year" honors along with the championship.

Brown's Bobby Brocato Takes Pontabla Dash

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 15 (AP)—Joe W. Brown's highly-rated Bobby Brocato won the $5,000 Pontabla Handicap at the Fair Grounds today, beating Marvin Affeld's Spur On by a neck.

Spur On, making his first start of the season in the six-furlong feature, was two lengths ahead of the Rebel Stables' Super Devil.

Bobby Brocato, top weighted at 118 pounds and ridden by jockey Ray Broussard, was timed in 1:11.4 over a fast track. He returned $5.80, $3.40 and $2.60. Spur On paid $6.00 and $3.40 and Super Devil paid $3.00 to show.

Bobby Brocato worked his way forward in the eight-horse field and held on to withstand Spur On after taking the lead from the Affeld colorbearer midway through the stretch.

It was the first start for Bobby Brocato since he won a division of the inaugural Thanksgiving Day handicap. The four-year-old son of Natchez-Dorothy Brown is being pointed for the $50,000 New Orleans Handicap on March 5.

YMCA Roundup For Members To Start January 24

The Twin Cities Young Men's Christian association will begin its 1955 membership roundup January 24. The kick-off will feature a ranch chow at the Rendezvous, 1400 Louisville, at 6:15 p.m. on January 24. Ranch chows are complimentary to all riders (workers).

Goals for the roundup have been set for 500 members and $15,000. Funds secured during the membership effort will be used to finance a full scale Y. M. C. A. program in Monroe and West Monroe during 1955.

The Roundup will have a western theme and western terminology will be used throughout. Dr. Roy L. "Houn' Dawg" Robertson is ranch boss for the roundup and will be assisted by John D. "Tex" Mullens and "Lighthorse" Harry Hudson who are serving as ranch straw bosses. Range bosses are Al "Cactus" Newburn, Dick "Dead Eye" Davis, R. G. "Railroad" Riley, Sam "Big Chief" Orchard, and T. C. "Lash" Agnew. Roger "Shotgun" Manning will serve as wrangler for the roundup and will be in charge of fun, festivities and entertainment for all report meetings. In addition to these top men, there will be 25 foremen and 125 riders who will work during the roundup. Cowgirls who will serve during the Roundup are headed by Mrs. Nelda Frey, Mrs. Fay Perry, and Miss Barbara Rawls.

Thanks to the support given the Y. M. C. A. during its 1954 roundup, Y. M. C. A. headquarters have been established at 217 Breard street in Monroe. This building provides office space, reading room and lounge equipped with TV set and record player, a game room, club meeting facilities and a kitchen. Through the cooperation of the Y's Men's Club and many other interested individuals, the building has been refinished inside and also furnished throughout. An active youth and adult program has been organized in both Monroe and West Monroe. At the present time there are 54 different Y. M. C. A. groups with an enrollment of 907 members in the Twin Cities which are meeting regularly and enjoying a progressive Christian program.

Y. M. C. A. officials emphasize that funds secured during the 1955 membership roundup will be used to increase the quality of program already organized and also to reach the areas that are still unserviced by the Y. M. C. A.

Mayor Morrison Of New Orleans To Speak Here

Mayor DeLesseps S. Morrison of New Orleans will be the featured speaker at the annual Distinguished Service Award-Boss Night banquet, which will be staged Monday night by the Monroe-West Monroe Chamber of Commerce. Morrison will arrive in Monroe Monday noon for the occasion.

The banquet, which is the highlight of the "Junior Chamber of Commerce Week", now being observed here throughout the nation, will also be highlighted by the presentation of the Young Man of the year. Selection of the Young Man of the Year, selected by an impartial group of men, over the age limit imposed on the candidates for the honor, is kept a secret until the banquet.

Mayor Morrison, who was selected for the DSA honor as outstanding young man in New Orleans, was re-elected mayor of New Orleans for the third time last January. He has also been chosen by the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce as one of the ten outstanding young men of the Nation. This selection was made in 1948.

A graduate of Louisiana State University, Morrison was elected to the state House of Representatives in 1940 and served as floor leader for former Governor Sam Jones. He is the author of the state and city civil service law and of the Voting Machine Act. He also authored the bill to reorganize the New Orleans Dock Board on a non-political basis.

From 1941 until the end of the war he served with the U. S. Army and at present holds a reserve commission as colonel.

In 1949 he was elected president of the American Municipal Association and the following year president of the Inter-American Municipal Association. In 1953 he received the LaGuardia Award, which was given for the administration of efficient and honest government in New Orleans, the National Association of Home Builders Award for rehabilitating housing in New Orleans and slum clearance, and the Central Louisiana Mayors Council Commendation for good city government.

Monroe Young Men of the Year in the past have been: Jimmy Plaisance, 1947; Fred Fudickar, Jr., 1948; R. C. White, Jr., 1949; Bailey Grant, 1950; Evans Ethridge, 1951; Garland Shell, 1952; and Irving Ziedman, 1953.

Busbice Makes Statement Here

E. H. Busbice, president of the Western Ouachita Water District No. 1, yesterday made the following assertions:

"Contrary to published reports, public support for the Western Ouachita Water District appears as strong as ever. While representatives appeared before the Police Jury Friday night and filed petitions from virtually every area of the district in a very orderly manner, the percentage of citizens represented is still in proportion to the opposition we have had all along. Units 1, 2, and 3 of the McGuire Additions have more people and the highest assessment of any of the areas and a study of the Annexation Petition indicates that about 31 per cent of this area favor the city and were thus represented before the Police Jury. This leaves some 69 per cent opposed to annexation in these three units and this percentage of opposition runs considerably higher in the other areas of the District and in the District as a whole. It is also to be noted that very few people who signed asking for the creation of the water district subsequently signed for the City.

"Officials of the District are not at all discouraged as to the probable action of the Police Jury. The questions involved are legal ones and will be resolved on that basis.

"We are going ahead with the presentation of the Preliminary Engineering and Financial report Wednesday night at 7:30. In addition to the Fiscal Agents and Engineers we also hope to have the chief of the Louisiana Fire Rating Bureau present. Partial report on the engineering indicates that the report will be a very favorable one."

Temperatures of 100 degrees and over have been reported from all 48 of the United States.

Man Forced Into Car Here, Wallet Taken By 2 Men

A Monticllo, La., man didn't enjoy this ride last night.

After being forced into an automobile in the vicinity of Five Points in Monroe by two men and driven to a service station in the 1900 block of Cypress, West Monroe where he was let out of the vehicle, he discovered that his wallet containing $127 had been taken.

West Monroe officers identified the Monticello man as Luther Williams.

Officers Ray Wyles and H. L. McPhail answered a call about 9:15 p.m. at the Sandifer Oil Station on Cypress where Williams had been put out of the car by the two men.

Williams told the officers that earlier in the evening he had been talking to two men in the vicinity of Five Points and abruptly during the conversation the men told him to get in the car.

He said as they were crossing the old bridge one of the men said that they were going to Ruston to get some money that they had recently hidden.

Williams said one of the men stated they had taken this money in an armed robbery, according to the officers.

At this point Williams said he tried to get out of the car but was warned to "sit still and behave himself" by the men.

Williams told officers that he did not discover that his wallet had been removed until after he had been let out at the station.

He stated that the $127 in his pocket book were four $20 bills, two $10 bills with the remainder being in smaller denominations.

According to West Monroe police, Williams could not furnish a complete description of the two men but stated they were in a late model maroon Mercury.

CARD OF THANKS

STATE OF LOUISIANA
PARISH OF MADISON

I, Lewis B. Furr, Clerk of the Sixth Judicial District Court and Ex-Officio Recorder in and for the aforesaid Parish and State, do hereby certify that by virtue of Marriage License No. 533, issued from this office on April 11, 1951, Mr. J. G. Thornton and Ida Margaret Sykes were married by J. E. King, Justice of Peace, Madison Parish, Louisiana, on April 15, 1951.

GIVEN UNDER MY HAND AND OFFICIAL SEAL at Tallulah, Louisiana this 12th day of January, 1955.

LEWIS B. FURR
Clerk & Ex-Officio Recorder

We wish to take this means of saying "Thanks" to all of our many friends who tried in every way to help us in our recent sorrow. Your words of comfort, your deeds of kindness, and your prayers in our behalf meant so much to all of us. Even though our loved one, Mrs. Ida Thornton, was taken from us by accident on December 19, 1954, we are comforted very much in her going because she had made her profession of faith in Jesus Christ and was baptized on September 14, 1952 in the First Baptist Church of Delhi, Louisiana.

"BECAUSE . . ."

. . . I'm a 5 year old youngster . . . because I'm on a 55'x75' lot . . . because I've 998 feet of living area with 5 rooms and 2 spacious bedrooms; oak floors, well - arranged kitchen with separate dining room; because I've an attic fan, floor furnace, new water heater . . . because of all the foregoing, you oughta' come see me. I'm vacant and I'm located at 1605 College!

KWITCHURBELIAKIN!

If everything you've looked at on the northside in 2 - bedrooms and a den has been "sky-high," "kiwtchurbeliakin" and look at 1404 MILTON! Living room and dining area are carpeted wall-to-wall; there's a thrilling 15'x24' pine-paneled den; glistening oak floors; Venetian blinds; attic fan; wonderfully landscaped yard with St. Augustine. It's a "honey," and priced at $12,500 with $1800 down FHA.

100% G. I.

Closing costs of approximately $275 turns the key to this splendid 3-bedroom home at 313 GEORGIA! And man . . . whatta' place! It possesses 1064 sq. feet; 3 unusually large bedrooms; gleaming oak floors; (2) floor furnaces; attic fan; natural woodwork; asbestos siding; copper plumbing and a 60'x150' lot. It's vacant and selling for $9100 with monthly notes as low as $53.

"BEATS ME!"

"Yep, it's a mystery . . . 'cause I'm fully air - conditioned with a 5-ton central unit as well as centrally heated. I'm located on a 75'x150' corner lot with 3-bedrooms, comfortable living room with fireplace, separate dining room; oak floors; copper plumbing; completely insulated; Venetian blinds; breakfast room and loads of other nice features." "Beats me why I'm not over-run with lookers, for I'm vacant and located at 2401 MARIE PLACE!"

IT AIN'T JAMBALYA . .

. . . but it's on the bayou! Here's graceful living in a 3-bedroom, 2-bath home with an abundance of unusual features: has a 12'x25' screened porch overlooking bayou; tremendous kitchen with nice cabinet space; 15'x27' living room with oak block floors; disappearing stair to attic; double carport; central heating and a 100'x442' lot on the bayou. . . . about the young'uns getting to school from this splendid home at 1700 South 5th for it's within walking distance of the Plum Street school! Here's a 2-bedroom youngster with 932 sq. feet of space; 100'x150' corner lot; carport and screened breezeway; attic fan and floor furnace; natural woodwork and it has oak floors. $9800 is the price.

A NATURAL . . .

. . . if you've a large family and you're in need of a 3-bedroom, 2-bath home on the northside! Here's a comfortable livin' in 1452 sq. feet of space . . . all bedrooms have sliding door closets; attic fan and 2 wall furnaces; patio in rear with roof; back yard is fenced; has carport and splendid storeroom on back of lot; the lot's 75'x150' and it's located at 1001 EMERSON. It's selling for the FHA value of $13,500 with $2200 down. You wanta' look?

A DAME . . .

. . . exclaimed: "You mean it has a glassed-in den!" Yep, and more to boot! There are 2 nice size bedrooms; 42" attic fan and floor furnace (den has wall furnace); kitchen has pine-paneled wainscoat; formica cabinet tops; excellent cabinet space; the 17'x16' den is also pine-paneled; it's on a 70'x160' lot and has carport and storage. It's located at 502 McGUIRE and selling for $12,600.

NO SOAP . . .

. . . Nor scrub brush needed in this splendid 3-bedroom home at 406 BROWNING (W.M.) for it's spotless and with a host of thrilling features: oak floors; asbestos siding; has a 9x18 screened porch on rear; aluminum awnings on windows; it's on a 100'x150' lot; has 40 gallon water heater; disappearing stair to attic for storage; closet doors have mirrors . . . in short it's a swell place and only $900 down makes the move on an FHA loan.

Little Theatre Curtain Call

BY MARION FISHER

Hello there—we are taking our first bow today as your new reporter. Having viewed our playhouse, paint-brush in hand, from up among the teaser curtains, atop a twelve foot ladder, as well as from behind the footlights, not to forget a "worm's-eye" view of the set from the business-end of a vacuum cleaner, we say most enthusiastically that Little Theatre is great fun. We welcome this new opportunity to further participate, and urge all of our many readers to consider seriously the rewarding possibilities to be found in Community Theater activity.

Come out and join in the work and play, as a member of the stage crew, as "Affairs of State" goes into production.

Director Thom Fuerstein reports that the cast is now complete. Monday at 7:30 p. m. full rehearsals will proceed, with Russel A. Brown as Phillip Russell. This is his first appearance on our local stage. His previous experience includes roles in such well known plays as "The Late Christopher Bean," and "Trial by Jury," as well as Gilbert and Sullivan Operettas, in College. Welcome to Monroe Little Theatre, Russell.

Alice Magouirk will play the part of Irene Elliott. She will be remembered for her skillful performance in "Dracula," of last season. A "seasoned" actress she is too, as she came to us from the oustanding San Diego Globe Theatre, where she played in several productions, one of which was "Play-boy of the Western World."

Beth Breece will be seen as Constance Russell. Welcome back, Beth. You have delayed too long in adding to your list of very successful roles of previous years at Monroe Little Theatre, and we've missed you. Among Beth's starring roles can be mentioned, All My Sons," "The Heiress," and "Glass Menagerie."

Shady Wall is cast as George Henderson, U. S. Senator. This is Shady's first appearance in Monroe as an amateur actor, but he is well known to us in his real-life role of Representative in our State Legislature. Congratulations, Shady on your decision to include, in your busy schedule, this additional participation in an important part of our community life.

Charles Wilhite has the part of Byron Winkler. Organist and choir director, Charles is not only a well known and talented musician but a versatile person as well. He was seen as Messenger No. 7013 in "Heaven Can Wait," opening show of last season.

Congratulations of Director Fuerstein are in order. A peek at early rehearsals indicates that another successful production is in the making.

NOTES — Vice-president Lealis Hale, of our board of directors, is driving to Breckenridge, Texas, where he will be at a dude ranch.

We think that you should know that Fleta Lathum was the modest author of our column on Wednesday and Friday of last week. Our compliments, Fleta.

John Breazeal, of "Gently Does It," entertained his fellow cast members last Sunday night with a very unique dinner party. John, who has spent several years in the Orient, happens to be a true gourmet.

Our Favorite Room

Monroe Morning World
Sunday, January 16, 1955

One of the city's most popular hostesses is Mrs. Clyde R. Brown, whose lovely home on North Fifth Street has been the scene of many gay social events. Mrs. Brown stands in the library which is a favorite room with the entire family.

An early American flavor characterizes the rock maple paneled kitchen at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Woods on Bon Aire Drive. The leaf green curtains and pale yellows and soft corals used for cabinet tops and floor covering, repeat the colors found in the Old New Orleans scene. This cheerful spot is Mrs. Wood's favorite for meal planning.

Every home has a favorite room—choosing one spot in these five lovely homes was difficult, but for our page these five settings were selected. (above) A room with a view—a favorite spot in the newly completed home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Masur on Point Drive. Mrs. Masur sits at the window which forms the east wall of the living and dining rooms overlooking the bayou and a sweeping view of the Bayou DeSiard golf course

"Cedar Crest," the beautiful new country home of Mr. and Mrs. William Feazel, is situated about seven miles out on the old Arkansas Road. Mrs. Feazel and her daughter Miss Lallage Feazel find the living room, with its view of the moon shaped lake, their favorite spot. Members of the family and friends relax and enjoy many week ends in the country.

Mrs. W. J. Riley Jr. sits before the brick fireplace in the den of her home on Pargoud Boulevard, where a feeling of warm hospitality exists. Contrasting with the rich wood tones of the paneling are the gleaming copper molds on the wall. A favorite room for the family on Sunday nights, when Mr. Riley grills and serves his special steaks.

Purely Personal

Many camellia lovers are spending the weekend in Lafayette attending the annual Camellia Show. Among the many congenial groups are Mr. and Mrs. John Breard and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Skillman.

Mrs. Edgar McCormick and Mrs. Womack of Oak Grove were joined here Friday by Mrs. Kennedy Brown and Mrs. John Potts for the drive down. Miss Emy Lou Biedenharn, Mrs. Allan Sholars and Mrs. H. K. Touchstone, Mrs. E. T. Lamkin and Mrs. Robert Layton, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Jardine, Dr. and Mrs. Edward Foster and Mrs. K. R. Young and Miss Inez Roberson are others enjoying the many festivities connected with the pageant this week end.

Mrs. James A. Noe and Mrs. J. Hunter Thatcher also spent the week end in Lafayette. They will visit in New Orleans before returning home.

Col. and Mrs. Daniel Norman were visitors in Monroe last week en route to their home in Pas Robles, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sherrouse left Friday for Cuernavaca, Mexico, where they will spend the next month.

Mrs. Melvin Watkins and Lynden Watkins of Portland, Maine, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Trousdale earlier this week.

Mrs. O. A. Easterling, Jr., and daughter, Cynthia, leave Monday for New Orleans where they will be the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Brogan. While there Mrs. Easterling will be an attendant in Miss Marion Andrus and Mr. Andrew McCollam's wedding. They will be joined by Mr. Easterling for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Holmes and daughter will return home this week end from New Orleans where they have attended several of the Mardi Gras festivities this past week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Bennie House departed by plane yesterday for Los Angeles, Calif., where they will spend this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans Ethridge return home today from Chicago, Ill., where they have spent the past week. Mrs. Ethridge's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McMahon of Houston, Tex., have been guests in their home here this week.

Mrs. A. J. Garvan returned from a ten - day Carribbean cruise on Saturday. She sailed aboard the "Silver Star" from Galveston, Tex. Among the highlights of her trip was sightseeing in Havana, Cuba.

Mrs. Joe Tamburo departed by plane this week for San Diego, Calif., where she will spend the next several days.

Mr. Russ W. Strong, a former resident of Monroe, who makes his home in Sacheta, on Long Island has been a guest at the Virginia Hotel since the New Years holidays. He concluded his visit yesterday and left for a further vacation in Tucson, Ariz. While in Monroe, Mr. Strong was entertained informally by many old friends.

MISS LYNN CURRAN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Curran of Mobile, Alabama, was recently chosen president of the Y. W. C. A. of the University of Alabama. A senior student at the university she is vice-president of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and chairman of the rush rules committee of Pan Hellanic. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Mark Stroud of this city.

Miss Strauss Chooses Her Wedding Attendants

Miss Peggy Strauss has chosen the attendants for her marriage to James Greenbaum, which will be celebrated January 29.

The ceremony will be performed at 7 p. m. at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club with a seated dinner following for relatives and out-of-town guests.

Mrs. Saul Mintz will be her twin sisters matron of honor. Other attendants will include, Mrs. Lionel Greenbaum, of Shaker Heights, Ohio, Mrs. Sam Strauss Jr., Little Rock, Ark., and Miss Joan Sugar.

Mr. Greenbaum will have as his best man his brother, Lionel Greenbaum, and his groomsmen and ushers, Arthur Phillips, Little Rock, Ark., Lee Levy, Hammond, Ronald Block, Chicago, Ill., and Saul Mintz.

Mix pretzel sticks with salted peanuts when the teen-age crowd wants a snack.

Miss Girard's Attendants Are Announced Today

Attendants in the wedding of Miss Ann Girard and the Reverend Gayle Mallette of West Monroe, are announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Curtis Girard, Sr., of El Dorado, Ark.

Serving the bride - elect as maid of honor will be her sister, Miss Pat Girard. Also attending her sister, will be Miss Peggy Girard, who will serve as flower girl. Candlelighters will be Misses Martha Girard, another sister of the bride - to - be, and Leah Tabarlet of Jonesboro, a niece of Reverend Mallette.

Reverend Tommy Harper of Lecompte, will act as Reverend Mallette's best man. Usher for the occasion will be Mr. Charles Swanson of Monroe.

Mr. Mark Tullos of Alexandria, will be the vocalist. He will be accompanied by Miss Betty Fisher of West Monroe.

Mrs. A. Sholars Talks To Club On Camellias

The Town and Country Garden Club held its January meeting at the home of Mrs. Fred Frazier on Pargoud Blvd. Mrs. Robert Clay and Mrs. R. W. Dickenhorst were co-hostesses.

Speaker Says Thing Of Beauty Is Joy Forever

Mr. Earl Hart Miller, Holly Hedges, Natchez, Miss., was the lecturer on Architectural Interior, when the Monroe Garden Club met at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club, Monday, for the January meeting.

Mrs. H. B. Hargrove, president-elect, due to the absence of the club president, Mrs. V. H. Rivers, introduced Mr. Miller.

"Holly Hedges," Mr. Miller's Natchez home, was bought and restored by Mr. Miller and is now on the garden pilgrimage tour.

Mr. Miller mentioned in his lecture that to build a worthwhile home, one must have adequate preparation. He also stated that homes should be built for convenience, stability and delight, with an interior lending dignity. Mr. Miller further advanced his theory that a garden should be a place of delight and that growing greenery alone does not make a garden. The garden and home should tie in together and add endless pleasure. This, according to Mr. Miller is achieved many times with the aid of sculpture, and used "The Shadows" on the Teche in New Iberia to exemplify this practice.

In the next 25 years Mr. Miller thinks he will have a modern architecture that will live. Mr. Miller hastened to add that the present modern architecture has been brought about by the lack of servants.

Hostesses were: Mrs. H. E. Guerriero, chairman; Mrs. Pete Godwin, co-chairman.

Serving with them were Mrs. Durwood Griffin, Mrs. V. H. Rivers, Mrs. E. S. Girault, Mrs. Gilbert Faulk and Mrs. J. J. Potts.

Workshops Open To Public

Weaving workshop, January 28.

Do you need to replace the bottom in a chair? Well, here's your chance to learn how under supervision, January 28. Mr. Wayne Robichaux, assistant sociologist of L. S. U. extension service, will teach Russian weaving with sea grass. Mrs. C. D. Collier will teach you to weave the bottom in the old porch rocker with split cane. Mrs. Charles C. Beadles will teach a new weave she learned from Kentucky women and the agent will teach you to weave the open mesh seat in the antique chair. You will bring your own supplies so see the council members of the Home Demonstration Club in your community for prices and places to get supplies. You may use an old chair or a stool frame to learn ways to weave chair seats. You do not have to be a club member to participate in this workshop — call 3-2251 for further information.

Tailoring Workshop:

If you need help on making that spring suit or coat, enroll in a tailoring workshop. Since the agent will have to spend February 14-18 attending a conference at L. S. U. training for new work to be done in the extension program, she will be unable to have more than one tailoring workshop this season for women outside the Twin Cities.

The enrollment in this tailoring workshop will be limited to 12 women, so the first calling will be enrolled. Work will be conducted at the Agricultural Auditorium January 24, 26, 27, 31. Four women have already enrolled, Mrs. A. J. Hudson, Colony Club; Mrs. H. W. Gill, Colony Club; Mrs. H. P. Carter, Cheniere Club; and Mrs. W. J. St. John, Swartz Club.

Gladioli Planting Time

Information from L. S. U. Extension Garden Specialist, Miss Winona Chauffe, says, "Plant gladioli now and reap a bounty of blossoms in May. Research shows that No. 1 corms planted in late January and early February produces more and better flowers. Blooms from plantings made after March are not very satisfactory.". Extend the blooming season by planting different sizes of corms at the same time (Corms No. 1 and No. 2 or by staggering the planting dates of one size corm.)

Be sure to plant one variety so as to have enough to select needs for your flower arrangement.

Remember we are having a flower arrangement course April 1 and May 3 this year and a show May 3. So be sure to plant flowers for your work.

Blooming Shrubs

Soon the flowering shrubs will begin to bloom in the city gardens and how beautiful. Among these will be the bush magnolia. Every garden in Ouachita should have in it some variety of these magnolias. There are a number of varieties but the soulangeanas, orchid, light and darker pink, and Negro dark purple are the hardy ones commonly grown here.

There is a new hybrid known as "Star Magnolia" (magnolia stellata) which is one of the loveliest early white flowering shrubs. Be sure to include these magnolias in this year's planting. Remember these magnolias will need at least 8-10 feet in which to grow. Don't crowd them.

Egg Month

January has been declared "Egg Month." No other food is more valuable when it comes to market than this little self wrapped package. Here is what this package contains: A complete protein, needed to build new body cells and repair old tissues. Two to three eggs provide the equivalent protein of one - fourth pound of meat.

Eggs rate high as a protective food as it contains vitamin A in the yolk; B1 (thiamine), B2 (riboflavin) and B12 recently discovered as the vitamin that combats pernicious anemia. The B vitamins develop steady nerves, normal appetite, good digestion and healthy skin. Eggs contain vitamin D and iron. Cook eggs with low to moderate heat.

Natchez Pilgrimage Set For March

Would you like to take a peek at things as they actually happened a hundred or more years ago? Then journey down to Natchez-on-the-Mississippi, "where the Old South still lives," for the 1955 Natchez Pilgrimage, March 2nd through March 31st. There you can step into the past with Natchez in its annual reenactment of a people's drama, a drama so poignant and impressive, so heartwarming in its sincerity that you will carry the experience in your memory for many days to come.

There are the daily tours to thirty antebellum mansions whose names have become familiar throughout the continent and abroad. In each house modern feminity has its day in the bewitching hoopskirt costumes resurrected from Grandmother's attic trunk and worn by present day Southern belles who receive and welcome you as an honored guest. On the tours, too, you perchance will meet personal friends and acquaintances among the thousands who are making this pilgrimage into the past, since every state in the union is well represented.

Many Natchezians, in enthusiastic cooperation with the annual pilgrimage, open their homes to help take care of the overflow of visitors, and a number of the antebellum houses on tour offer accomodations also.

Your enjoyment of the daily tours is climaxed by evening entertainments that have become highlights of the event. The colorful Confederate pageant, presented on each Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, transports you back through the years to a period of wealth, culture and lavish entertainment such as no city other than Natchez could boast, a period renowned for the immeasurable graciousness with which life was lived in Natchez a hundred or more years ago. This brilliant entertainment grips and holds you with the tremendous appeal it has for young and old alike. In dramatic contrast, the Negro Spirituals program, "Highway to Heaven' written and directed by Natchez Negro citizens and made up of a local all - Negro cast, is presented each Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday.

Redolent with history and romance are the names of houses to be seen on the Natchez Pilgrimage this season: The Elms, Hawthorne, Longwood, Gloucester, Twin Oaks, Linden, Melrose, Elmscourt, Elgin Plantation, The Briers, Richmond, Hope Farm, Dunleith, Green Leaves, Holly Hedges, Arlington, The Burn, Airlie, Stanton Hall, Lansdowne, Mount Repose, Bontura, The Parsonage, Connelly's Tavern, Monmouth, Monteigne, Oakland, D'Evereux, Cherokee and Rosalie.

For additional information write The Natchez Pilgrimage, Natchez, Miss.

News From The Public Library

January is again a busy month in the publishing world and new books in increasing numbers are beginning to arrive at the Ouachita Parish Public Library. There are books for every taste and this s a fine season for reading. If you are not in the habit of using your library for pleasure and profit, make a resolution to come by at the first opportunity.

There are several fascinating new books of fiction, of which the outstanding one is probably Zoe Oldenbourg's "The Cornerstone." Several years ago she wrote a story called "The World Is Not Enough." Everyone who read it just loved it, for although it was set in medieval France, she made her characters so human that it was easy to see that human nature had changed little during the years. "The Cornerstone" is also a story of medieval manners and morals as represented by three generations of a French baronial family. Helen McInnes is an author who writes of the problems of the present day world in a very readable and enthralling manner. Most of her books have a definite political slant, combined with a good love story. Her latest offering is "Pray For A Brave Heart." The setting for this story is Switzerland and the action is fast and interesting.

Stories with a Lousiana setting are always popular with our patrons and the latest one of this type is "Louisiana Cavalier" by Everett Webber. The scene shifts from New Orleans to the court of Louis XIV in France. It will appeal to all who enjoy historical novels.

Margaret Widemer is an excellent writer of rather light historical romances. Her latest one is "The Golden Wildcat." It is a sequel to "Red Cloak Flying," which came out in 1950. The scene is upstate New York and the time is the period before the American Revolution when the French and English were struggling for the mastery of New France. It is a story of action and intrigue in a rough period, but it makes interesting reading. "Pray Love Remember" by Mary Stolz is another of her excellent novels for older teen - agers.

Frank Slaughter has a large following, whether he writes about the contemporary scene or the historical. In either case he brings in a background of medical experience. His latest novel is "The Healer" and it has its setting in a large metropolitan hospital. "My Brother's Keeper" by Marcia Davenport is based on a true story that made the headlines some months ago about two recluse brothers. Mrs. Davenport has written a gripping and penetrating story of this event. "The Adventurers" by Ernest Haycox is a little different from his usual works. This story has its basis on a shipwreck which took place off the California Coast in 1865 and of the three survivors of this tragedy, two men and a woman. It goes on from there to take up their later life in a compelling and readable story. This is the Literary Guild selection for January and one that you will not want to miss.

More and more peope are realizing the pleasure of reading books which are classed as non-fiction, but are often as exciting as a novel to read. Among the latest additions to the library, there are several books of this type. "The Lady of Fashion" by Eric Barnes is an exciting story of an actress, playwright and darling of the American stage during the Victorian period. It is the life of Anna Cora Mowatt and it is beautifully written. Another delightful book of non-fiction is Bob Hope's "Have Tux, Will Travel." It is as you would expect, a very humorous account of his life and career.

A more serious type of book is "We Came To America" by Frances Cavanah; an anthology of immigrants to this country who have helped to make it what it is. A book which should be very useful to teenagers is "How To Be A Successful Teen-Ager" by William C. Menninger. I wish I had been able to read such a book while I was growing up. It is really a wonderful book of psychology for teenage readers.

A practical book of interest to hostesses is "The Complete Book of Entertaining," by Jim Beard. This book contains menus, recipes and all sorts of hints on how to be a successful hostess.

Always in demand by schools, scouts and church groups are short one - act plays. A recent addition to the library is "One Hundred Non-Royalty One-Act Plays' " by William Kozlenko. Another very practical book is "Aerodynamics for Model Airplanes" by Donald K. Foote. This is a book which should be very helpful to all enthusiasts of this sport.

Some of the books which I mention in these articles are so expensive that we have only one copy in our library collection. That copy naturally is kept at headquarters, but you can secure it at any branch of the system, merely by making a request. The Ouachita Parish Public Library attempts to give the best possible service to every citizen of the parish on a very limited budget. We swap books from one branch to another, we borrow books from the Louisiana State Library, the Library of Congress and other libraries for our patrons. If the book is available we will get it for you, if you will only give us a little time. The Ouachita Parish Public Library is a service institution organized on the policy of giving the best possible service to all the people and not to one special group.

Boyle - Nastasi Wedding Is Event Of Early January

Miss Mary Nastasi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Nastasi, became the bride of Willard Francis Boyle, son of Mrs. Joseph Boyle of Butler, Pa., in a double ring ceremony performed by Mgrs. Marsh at nine o'clock Wednesday morning.

Arrangements of emerald foliage with white stock decorated the altar. White satin ribbon marked the family pew.

Nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Della Williamson who also accompanied Charles Biggar who sang "Ava Maria" and "Panis Angelicus."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a white Chantilly lace gown over white satin which featured a chapel-length train and long fitted sleeves which extended over her hands. The yoke was fashioned with a Marie Antoinette collar embroidered in sequins and she wore a crown of seed pearls which held her fingertip veil of silk illusion. Her bouquet was a triangular shape of feathered white carnations and white hyacinths centered with a white orchid.

The bride's maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth Joseph, was gowned in a golden taffeta with a fitted bodice, square neckline and detachable cape which formed the sleeves. The bouffant skirt buttoned down the back. She wore Juliet cap of matching taffeta and carried an arm bouquet of red roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Lenard Cascio, the bride's godmother, was attired in a gown identical to the maid of honor in a burnt maple. She carried an arm bouquet of talisman roses.

Mrs. Robert E. Schott was bridesmaid and wore a matching dress in a willow green with a bouquet of pink roses.

Georgia Carol DeMarco, cousin of the bride, was flower girl and wore a pink taffeta model. She carried yellow roses.

Serving the bridegroom as best man was William R. McNallen. Mike Nastasi, a nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

Groomsmen were Lenard Cascio and Robert E. Schott. Vincent Saragusa and Merle Ray were ushers.

The bride's mother chose for the occasion a navy blue crepe dress with a sweetheart neckline and a matching blouse of cut steel beads with a white hat, navy accessories and a white orchid.

Mrs. Boyle, the bridegroom's mother, was wearing a peacock blue crepe dress with a round neckline outlined in sequins and pearls, and featuring beaded shoulders and pockets. She wore black accessories complimented by a white orchid.

A reception followed in the Cameo Room of the Virginia Hotel.

Large arrangements of white stock and white tapers formed the background for the receiving line.

The bride's table was overlaid with a white lace cloth and decorated with small bouquets of pom pom mums surrounding the cake. Smilax was draped along the sides of the table and tied at the corners with small satin ribbons.

Centering the punch table was a large arrangement of white carnations and stock. Miss Josephine Carso and Mrs. V. Saragusa served the punch. Miss Josephine Anzalone registered guests in the brides book.

For a wedding trip to Florida, the bride changed to a navy gabardine suit with white and powder blue linen cuffs and collar. She wore a white hat and navy accessories and the white orchid from her wedding bouquet.

Upon their return, they will be at home at 302 Harn street, Monroe.

The bride is a graduate of St. Matthew's High School.

The bridegroom graduated from Chicara High School in Butler, Pa.

Out - of - town guests at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Joe Nastasi and sons of Oklahoma City, Okla.; Mrs. Josephine Saragusa of Denison, Tex.; Mrs. Joe Ciaccio and Mr. and Mrs. Nick Ciaccio of Denison, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. M. Gifts were presented to the attendants at this time.

Chapel Ceremony Unites Couple

Garden Club Makes Corsages

The Sprig and Twig Garden Club held its monthly meeting Tuesday night in the home of Mrs. B. F. Cummings on North Fourth street.

Mrs. E. D. Slaughter, president, introduced a new member, Mrs. B. L. Talton.

After a brief business session, Mrs. Gladys Kulcke gave an interesting and informative discourse on materials and flowers best suited for the arranging of corsages.

Each member brought material for a corsage and made one at the meeting. Mrs. J. M. Pratt selected a Valentine motif for her corsage in which she used red Professor Sergeant camellias combined with white pipe stems formed in the shape of hearts.

Mrs. C. W. Simpson chose pink gladioli for a shoulder corsage. She combined pale green ribbon and pipe stem with variegated tradescantia for background foliage. Mrs. E. D. Slaughter made a wrist corsage of yellow chrysanthemums and English ivy leaves.

Mrs. T. J. Mulhearn, Jr., made a long shoulder corsage using three white Alba Plena camellias combined with their own foliage.

Mrs. Cummings served refreshments to the following members: Mrs. J. A. Coleman, Mrs. T. J. Mulhearn, Jr., Mrs. C. W. Simpson, Mrs. O. K. Davis, Mrs. H. C. Richter, Mrs. J. M. Pratt, Mrs. B. L. Talton, Mrs. R. F. Wilson, Mrs. Gladys M. Kulcke, and Mrs. E. D. Slaughter.

Presbyterians Of Monroe Preparing Centennial

The session of the First Presbyterian Church of Monroe has designated the year 1955 as its centennial, commemorating the organization of a Presbyterian Church in Monroe. In the latter part of 1855, or in 1856, fifteen Presbyterians banded themselves together to worship God in the Presbyterian way. As a result of this small beginning there are now four churches of this denomination in Ouachita parish, The First Presbyterian Church in Monroe, the Memorial Presbyterian Church of West Monroe, the Fairbanks Presbyterian Church, and the Covenant Presbyterian Church. Of the first officers of the mother church, only two names are available, Fielding L. McCormick, whose descendants are still in Monroe and West Monroe, and a Dr. Martin.

The original charter of the First Presbyterian Church was granted in 1860 under the Red River Presbytery, Synod of Mississippi, which makes it the oldest chartered church in Ouachita parish. Its' trustees were Samuel L. Slack, Francis Peter Stubbs, Robert W. Richardson, Robert W. Jemison, John Randolph Lacy, Fielding L. McCormick, and Algermon F. Flournoy. Its first permanent minister was Reverend John McCampbell. He was followed by J. Y. Allison, Dr. Bowen, W. D. Spurlin, Dr. Booth, Dr. Newman, Dr. Ernest Holloway and Reverend W. H. McFadden, the present minister.

Fifty - nine elders, including the present encumbents have served this church since organization.

A number of special services have been scheduled throughout the year in commemoration of one hundred years of Presbyterianism in Ouachita parish. The first of these will be the appearance of Dr. Wade H. Boggs, moderator of the General Assembly and former pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Shreveport. He is a member of Red River Presbytery and will be the guest speaker on January 23 at the morning and evening services.

Dr. Ben Lacy, president of Union Seminary and former moderator of the General Assembly will be the guest speaker in June.

Dr. Walter Rowe Courtenay, minister of the First Presbyterian Church of Nashville, Tenn., will hold a week of special services beginning October 9, through October 14.

The Reverend Ben L. Collins has recently become associated with the First Presbyterian Church as its minister of Christian Education. He assumed his duties on January 1. A reception in his honor will be held under the sponsorship of the women of the church and the Young People of the church in the Fellowship Hall from 6 to 7:30 p.m., January 16, after which Reverend Collins will conduct the regular Sunday evening services.

The First Presbyterian Church has set as its goals for its centennial year, a one hundred increase in membership, a one hundred increase in the church school and air-conditioning of the educational building.

Today's YOUR GUIDING STAR Messages:

Monroe Will Be Host To Noted Asian

Kyu Suk Soh, YMCA secretary from Seoul, Korea, will visit the local Twin Cities YMCA January 17 and 18. Soh will arrive via Delta Airlines from Birmingham, Ala., Sunday, January 16 at 9:23 p. m. He will spend two days in Monroe and West Monroe observing YMCA techniques, administration, and programs before leaving for Shreveport Tuesday evening, January 18.

The international committee of the YMCA has awarded Mr. Kyu Suk Soh, business secretary of the Seoul YMCA, A three month's international visitation fellowship in recognition for his outstanding work with the Korean central YMCA.

Mr. Soh, 37 years old, is a graduate of the Chosun Christian University where he majored in commerce. He was employed by the Korean government in Kandosun, Manchukuo for many years. He is a Methodist and is active in his church.

Mr. Soh is keenly interested in learning all he can about YMCA fund raising, building and equipment management, accounting and record keeping, and also labor-management and industrial relations.

Although Mr. Soh's primarry interest is in the administrative aspects of YMCA work, he will also, observe the work done with youth groups, volunteer leaders, committees, staff organizations, and in addition, attend Y's Men's Club meetings and study group work philosophy and methods. He will enjoy opportunities to visit community centers, settlement houses and also observe labor - management in a variety of factory settings.

Mr. Soh is looking forward to learning about "How American Lives"; in exchange he will tell us about his YMCA and life in Korea.

The international visitation program is one of the many Y. M. C. A. world services of the international committee in North America. These fellowships make it possible to bring key Y. M. C. A. secretaries and laymen from Africa, Asia, Europe, and South America to the United States and Canada. In 1952 there were 40 men who were awarded fellowships. In 1953 there were 20 fellowships, and in 1954, 32 fellowship men visited this country. Each visitor's itinerary is planned to provide the maximum in opportunities for a mutual exchange of knowledge and to further international understanding.

Among the citations which comprise the lesson - sermon is the following from the Bible: "By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death; and was not found, because God had translated him: for before his translation he had this testimony, that he pleased God" (Hebr. 11:5.)
The lesson - sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The understanding that Life is god, Spirit, lengthens our days by strengthening our trust in the deathless reality of Life, its almightiness and immortality" (487.)

If you have baked your sheet sponge cake too slowly and it is too stiff for rolling up neatly, you may be able to remedy the trouble this way. Cover a very hot baking sheet with a wet cloth; cloth; place a sheet of paper on top of the cloth and the sponge cake on top of the paper. After a minute or so the cake will be steamed enough so it can probably be rolled up with ease.

PATIO BUILDING time for all the family. While work in the garden is limited at this season of the year many Twin City gardeners are out planning and building patios for the Spring and Summer days ahead. Shown above is a small patio in the Wesley Shafto yard that was built as a family project.

THE HOME SHIFT—

With Mildred Swift

Patio Building Is Fun For The Family

The rains may interrupt the planting for a while, but you can do some arm chair planning. You can get out the nursery catalogue (wishy books as somebody called them) and make lists, draw beds and arrange shrubbery. It's lots easier to move a plant with an eraser than with a spade.

More All America Awards

A new celosia (cockscomb is the common name) called Toreador won the award. This is a hot weather plant that is more dwarf and compact, and the heads are brighter red. The head is very large and crimson with light green foliage.

Another petunia wins the all America award. It is Prima Donna, a rosy pink dwarf fringed hybrid.

The third winner is a columbine which is not grown too much in this area. Mr. Claude Davis in Baton Rouge is an authority on this plant.

Reminders

In a few days the red flowering quince will be putting out a few blooms. There are so many different colors of quince. Jane Sherrouse has a luscious pink one. The Holloways on Loop Road have many white. Remember too, the white flowering almond may fit in with the color of your house better than pink.

As soon as the soil is dry enough, get the flower forders spaded up and the soil well pulverized. Here is the test for dryness of soil. Scoop up a handful. If it sticks together when dropped, it's too wet. If it falls apart, then this soil is dry enough for working. If you haven't already transplanted your daisies, coreopsis and verbena, it is still not too late. Not to late for calendula and pansy plants. When planting these perennials give them a drink of food. Mix one cup of 5-10-5 or 8-8-8 in a gallon of water. Pour one cup of this around each plant.

Caution: When buying plants from those people who dig them from the woods and bring them in to sell — be sure the roots are not dried out. I saw a car Saturday with dogwoods tied on the top, the wind was whipping them to death. No chance of survival.

New gardeners, please don't start out with camellias and azaleas in your new yard until you get some shade. Stay with the hardier plants. If you'll concentrate on shade trees and lawn the first year, the second year you'll be ready for shrubs. That is, unless you are financially able to do it all the first year.

Even though it is not patio sitting time it is a good time to start that project while there's not so much to do in the garden. Make use of small nooks where the grass won't grow. In the picture is just such a nook, 25 feet square. The Wesley Shaftos, 1005 North Third street, made use of a nook, as you see in the picture. This patio opens from the kitchen and is a joy to the family. For an enclosure, Wesley made a picket fence. An old red bud in the center of the area was left for shade and because the trunk is such a thing of beauty.

Patio building can be an easy family project, since we've found a satisfactory way of laying brick without mixing the cement with water. Just level your area and as you lay the brick, put one half inch of dry cement on the ground—work out your pattern. When you've finished, sweep sand between the brick and wash it down with the hose. Some people like to mix a little sand with the cement, even as much as half and half. In either case the cement holds the brick in place and discourages the growth of grass.

Egg Month

January is National Egg Month. Food shoppers, if you are interested in good buys — it's an excellent time to resolve to use more eggs during 1955. They have complete proteins, so necessary for building and repairing body tissues. Also, eggs have iron and phosphorus, vitamin A, B and D. When used as an alternate for meat in family menus, two yarge eggs will provide the same amount of protein as an average serving of meat. And remember calorie watchers — eggs are low in those calories. One medium large egg has only about eighty.

Do you know that eggs kept at room temperature may lose as much quality in three days as those kept two weeks in a good refrigerator? They should be kept covered too. To keep left-over egg yolks fresh, put them unbroken in a dish or cup — add just enough water to cover them. Put egg whites in a jar or dish — cover lightly — and be sure to keep them cool.

Like all protein foods, eggs will become tough and leathery if cooked at too high a temperature. Cook slowly with low even heat.

Yes, from the point of view of the consumer, this is bargain time for eggs.

Here and There

Katie Mae Thornhill says she tried the salad oil and salt method of removing white spots on several pieces of furniture. She was pleased that it worked so well. Very old or stubborn spots sometime will not respond to this simple treatment.

Many of you have been asking for something on making figurines on one of my TV shows — well — just tune in Tuesday at 2:30 p.m. Anice Klie, your very efficient Girl Scout executive for Ouachita parish, is going to give you some simple and practical instructions that will be easy for you to follow.

I'll be in New Orleans today, tomorrow and Tuesday, guest of Louisiana Dairy Products Association at their annual convention. I'll learn something worthwhile to bring back to you.

The woolen materials are on sale now, so if you're planning on making a suit or coat in the tailoring class in February, you could buy your material now while there is a good selection. Watch for dates in this column. See you next Sunday.

Garden Center Notes

By Mary M. Jardine

Camellia Season Is Here In Full Swing

Wisner Garden Club members presented a brilliant and colorful flower show at the Garden Center this week. Mrs. Kent Breard and Mrs. Archie Dickerson of Monroe served as judges.

In the arrangement class, Mrs. E. B. Knotts was awarded first place and a blue ribbon. On a palette shaped black base Mrs. Knotts created a beautiful Hogarth curve in a silver pitcher. The design was created of clipped palm, Buford holly and flame gladiolus in bud and in bloom. Second place, blue ribbon was awarded to Mrs. Allen Cruce. In a milk glass compote set on a rectangular black base, Mrs. Cruce designed a lovely horizontal arrangement of ivy, paper-white narcissus and white Roman hyacinths. Rosettes of pittosporum leaves and buds were effectively placed in the focal area. Mrs. R. A. Brown was awarded third place for a dramatic crescent design of cedar and camellias. For a container Mrs. Brown chose a footed milk glass bowl, the crescent line was created of blue - green cedar. Brilliant Professor Sargent camellias were used to enhance the crescent. The arrangement was placed against a soft gray background. We are always proud when the horticulture is in the blue ribbon class. Three blue ribbons were awarded as follows: Mrs. A. B. Moore for Professor Sargent camellia, Mrs. R. A. Brown for camellia-Debutante, Mrs. E. Asa Kiper for white Roman hyacinths.

Also on exhibit this week was a spectacular Dutch hybrid amaryllis. The variety is salmon glory. The bloom scape is twenty (20) inches high. The flowers, four blooms to this one scape, have wide, flat faces with rounded petals and the color is a delightful salmon red. John Birdsong is the owner and grower of this beautiful bulb. A friend just telephoned to say her son had sent her a eucalyptus tree from California. We will eagerly await to see the variety and how it fares in this climate. There are so many varieties used on the west coast and in arid Arizona. Some kinds endure extremes of heat as well as cold and the whole group is notably free from insects because of the strong aromatic oil in the wood. We should experiment with them in this area. I propose to try.

Camellia season is here and camellia shows are in full swing. Today the Louisiana Camellia Society is holding their show in Lafayette. On January 22 and 23, shows will be staged in Baton Rouge, Lake Charles, and Slidell, and Mobile, Ala. January 29 and 30 in Hammond, La., Biloxi and McComb, Miss., Gulfport. Birmingham, Ala., and Beaumont, Tex. We find visiting the camellia shows covers a three-fold purpose, first of all the trip, then the joy derived from seeing the beauty of fine camellia varieties displayed at their best as specimens and in arrangements and last but not least meeting and exchanging flower lore with gardeners of other cities and sections. Hope you all will find the opportunity to treat yourselves to one or more of these shows.

SOUTHERN GARDENER—

By William Lanier Hunt

Climbing Roses Need Pruning Now

With the days already getting perceptibly longer, we had better get at some of the tasks of late January. One of these is the pruning of climbing roses. If you have a long climber on the house or on a trellis, the very best thing to do is to take it completely off the support before you try to prune it. You may have to lighten the mass of twigs and canes some before you let the whole thing down. Otherwise, the weight may damage the larger canes by bending them too much when the climber comes down. After it is down, it is easiest to begin at the ground with your pruning. Select the youngest canes and some of the older ones that are healthy looking, and begin the process of pruning by following the ones you are eliminating through the tangle and cutting them out, bit by bit. Whatever you do, do not yank and pull long pieces out because you will bruise and scar the rose and subject these places to disease later on. It is no trouble at all to trim a rose if you will simply cut out little pieces about a foot long instead of long ones. If you are a rose "fan," you will know that the old wood on Dr. Van Fleet, that long climbing light pink and its "everblooming" form called New Dawn will bloom on and on for years without pruning. The same is true of Silver Moon. We always like to remind you of this fact for fear you will think you have to take these great running roses down and cut out the old wood. As long as they do not get completely out of hand, let them go. They will cover a house if the house is strong enough to hold them up!

We southerners ought to plant some more Mauechal Niel — even if it does not always do too well. If it does succeed in one place, then try it in another, for there is still not a more beautiful yellow climber for the southern states. Just think — it was introduced by Pradel back in 1864! One of its ancestors was a rose raised in Charleston, S. C. back in 1810 by a horticulturist named Champneys. Mr. Champneys' rose was called Champney's Pink Cluster and combined the virtues of the China rose with those of the Musk rose. Another Charlestonian, the French nurseryman, Philippe Noisette, raised a second rose from Champney rose and sent it to his brother in Paris in 1814. In this country, it was called Old Blush (French) Noisette Rose. In France, the famous artist. Redoute painted it in 1821 in his great book of roses which is, of course, the most beautiful book on roses ever published. (I mentioned in my travelogue last summer that they are reproducing Redoute by color photography, and one can buy this book today). French nurserymen sold the new Noisette rose and also used it in their breeding of new varieties. This brings us up to the era of Napoleon III.

Marechal Niel was Napoleon III's secretary of state. One day, on a tour of inspection of French fortresses, he was at Avignon. The banquet hall where he was being entertained, was filled with beautiful yellow roses. Now the Marechal was a rose lover. He sent for the local florist who had discovered the rose and congratulated him on it. Whereupon, the florist said that he would name the rose Madame la Marechale in honor of the marechal's wife. The fact that the marechal was a bachelor saved us from having this long French name for our Narechal Niel! Once this rose gets started, it will grow to great size here in the south. In Spain, there is a specimen ten inches in diameter at the base! It is growing at Granados in the Gardens of the Alhambra. The famous and beloved Dr. Nicolas visited this rose and identified it in 1930, and he said that his French friend, the rose breeder Dot, confirmed his identification.

Marinate thin-onion rings in wine vinegar to which a little sugar has been added. Serve the drained rings with solid - pack tuna fish, homemade mayonnaise, a bowl of crisp greens and crusty rolls for a delicious and satisfying lunch. Fresh fruit and coffee for dessert!

...low Business' ...rings Galaxy Of Great Stars

With 24 Berlin songs to give it melody, 67 elaborate settings to fill the CinemaScope screen spectacularly, with DeLuxe color to add brilliance, a heart - warming story for sentiment and a sextette of stars singing and dancing in their best style, Irving Berlin's "There's No Business Like Show Business," a Darryl F. Zanuck presentation which premieres at the Paramount Theatre on Thursday aims for the musical jackpot.

Twentieth Century-Fox has never been more lavish with its production resources than for this opulent musical. The cream of Hollywood's musical comedy stars — Ethel Merman, Donald O'Connor, Marilyn Monroe, Dan Dailey, Johnnie Ray and Mitzi Gaynor—were selected to head the cast and 300 chorus beauties add their pulchritude to the lavish numbers.

The nostalgic story of the vaudeville team of Molly and Terry Donahue played by Miss Merman and Mr. Dailey and their three children, who make it the Five Donahues, gave Producer Sol C. Siegel and Director Walter Lang the opportunity to present a cavalcade of show business, highlighted by Irving Berlin's incomparable tunes.

Of the 24 numbers in the picture, three are new: "If You Believe," sung by Johnnie Ray; "A Man Chases A Girl Until She Catches Him," sung and danced by Donald O'Connor, and "A Sailor Is Not a Sailor 'Till He Has Been Tattooed," written especially for Ethel Merman and Mitzi Gaynor. Marilyn Monroe sings three old songs, "Heat Wave," "Lazy" and "After You Get What You Want You Don't Want It," and her rendition of them caused Berlin, who served as adviser on the picture, to remark that now they will be hits all over again. "Heat Wave," he revealed, was first sung by Ethel Waters about 20 years ago. "If You Believe," Berlin said, was written about 1930 and had been sung only in a few churches until recently. Ray sings it here for the first time.

Other songs in the picture include "When That Midnight Choo Choo Leaves For Alabam," "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody," "Simple Melody," "You'd Be Surprised," "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and the title song. The latter forms the basis of the finale for the picture which is said to be the most spectacular number in musical film history. A huge stage equipped with hydraulic lifts and 15 different levels was used for this number in which 300 dancers in addition to the stars give terpsichorean versions of nearly every branch of show business — circus acrobats, rodeo artists, roller and ice skaters, ballet, serpentine dances, Spanish, jazz, jitterbug, drum majors and other dancers, giving a three - ring version of show business.

This finale was the most expensive number ever staged at the Twentieth Century - Fox studios, according to Producer Siegel, who likened it to Gene Kelly's "American In Paris" ballet, hitherto the most costly number in movie musical history.

The choreography for "There's No Business Like Show Business" was created by Robert Alton, whose Broadway hits include four "Ziegfeld Follies" shows, "Anything Goes" and "Hazel Flagg," among others. Alton did the hit, "Pal Joey." He used six assistants to help train the dancers for each number. Phoebe and Henry Ephron wrote the screen play from Lamar Trotti's original story and Leon Shamroy was director of photography. Alfred and Lionel Newman supervised and conducted the musical numbers. The production crew boasted experts with 97 Academy nominations and 21 Academy Oscars.

About 13 per cent of the area of Iceland is covered by snow fields and glaciers.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: We have a little boy five years old who behaves quite well when at home with his own family but when we have company he is suddenly changed into an impish little show-off. Can you tell me what to do?
A.M.B.

ANSWER: This exhibitionism on the part of your little boy is quite normal, but it must be curbed and controlled if he is to develop into the charming and courteous youngster you want him to be. His tendency to "steal the show" is an expression of the normal desire for notice and recognition.

One of the most effective ways to impress him of his undue frowardness is to wisely apply a little old-fashioned discipline. I know this may sound out of date, but even psychiatrists are advocating a revival of stronger disciplines for our children.

I have a friend who was superintendent of an orphanage where many children were under his care. He had a son of his own who lived with the other children and although he often spanked his own boy, he seldom spanked the others. One day a boy, an inmate of the institution, came to my friend the superintendent and said: "You don't love me like you do your own boy, do you?" The superintendent, shocked at such a statement, asked what he had done or not done to make the parentless lad think he was unloved. The boy replied; "Well, you spank your own boy but you never spank me."

Children associate proper discipline with love and concern for their welfare. Children who are coddled, psychologists agree, are treated as unjustly as those who are brutalized.

The Bible says; "Foolishness is bound in the heart of a child; but the rod of correction shall drive it far from him." (Pro. 22:15)

Discipline (the right kind) is to the child what a bridle is to a horse. It is the "gee-haw" that shows him the way to go.

(What is your question? Write Billy Graham care of this newspaper.)

Some cooks like to use a moderate (350 degrees) temperature for turkey rather than the low (325 degrees) temperature usually called for. Make your choice, but be sure to cover the turkey with a fat - soaked piece of muslin during the roasting. If the cloth dries, moisten it with more fat; remove it about half an hour before the end of the roasting time.

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

Answer to Question No. 1

1. The Yale Center of Alcoholic Studies states that it takes men an average of 15 to 18 years of drinking to become "full - fledged" alcoholics; women, five to seven years. "Management Information" states that 3 to 6 per cent of employees become alcoholic problems. Some firms have programs that cure 80 per cent of their alcoholics. Supervisors owe it to the employees to help them.

Answer to Question No. 2

2. Six UCLA coeds lived six weeks on a daily diet of one muffin; butterscotch pudding; occasional handfuls of gum drops; soda pop; and capsules of vitamins, minerals, and amino acids. None gained or lost weight; all went on with college work. Important for people who have to live entirely on vegetables deficient in the elements contained in the capsules.

Answer to Question No. 3

3. Apparently not. One psychologist compared 100 American boys with 113 Mexican boys of the same age, height, and weight. He tested them in six categories — grip, chinning, running, jumping, lifting, and putting the sot — Mexican boys outdid Americans in every contest but putting the shot. This doesn't prove all Mexican boys are superior, but it should give a jolt to our complacency.

Jose Ferrer, Merle Oberon Star In 'Deep In My Heart'

A stunning array of stars has been assembled by M-G-M for its newest color musical, "Deep in My Heart," based on the life and melodies of Broadway's famed composer, Sigmund Romberg Wednesday.

Here are the personalities who make up what is probably the most dazzling aggregation of top show business names ever brought together for a single motion picture —Jose Ferrer as Romberg, Merle Oberon, Helen Traubel, Doe Avedon, Walter Pidgeon, Paul Henreid, Tamara Toumanova, and guest stars Rosemary Clooney, Gene and Fred Kelly, Jane Powell, Vic Damone, Ann Miller, William Olvis, Cyd Charisse, James Mitchell, Howard Keel, Tony Martin and Joan Weldon.

Several of the stars enact pivotal roles in the story of Romberg's life and almost all of them lend their respective singing and dancing talents to the picture's wealth of musical interludes.

Filled with the lovely melodies which made such Romberg musicals as "Maytime," "My Maryland," "New Moon," "The Desert Song" and "The Student Prince" among the greatest hits ever to reach Broadway, the plot traces the composer's rise to success from his humble beginning as the leader of a small orchestra in a New York cafe, and centers on the three women who played a vital part in his climb to fame. Anna Mueller (Helen Traubel) is the music-loving owner of the Cafe Vienna, who encourages Romberg in his early efforts. Dorothy Donnelly (Merle Oberon) is the actress who persuades J. J. Shubert (Walter Pidgeon) to engage Romberg to write the music for his shows and who later collaborates with him on the successful "Student Prince." And Lillian Harris (Doe Avedon) is the girl with whom Romberg falls head - over - heels in love and, after a tempestuous courtship, marries.

The picture's guest stars are given their opportunities in sequences from eleven Romberg operettas. Gene Kelly and his brother, Fred, appear together on the screen for the first time for "I Love to Go Swimmin' with Wimmin." Jane Powell and Vic Damone team for "Will You Remember" and "Road to Paradise" from "Maytime." Ann Miller recaptures the spirit of the Jazz Age with her Charleston exhibition in the "It" number against a backdrop by John Held, Jr. Film newcomer William Olvis sings "Serenade" from "The Student Prince." Cyd Charisse and James Mitchell dance to "One Alone." Howard Keel sings the rousing "Your Land and My Land," Tony Martin and Joan Weldon sing "Lover Come Back to Me," and Tamara Toumanova has a scintillating number in "I Love to Say Hello to the Boys."

Stanley Donen, who scored a knockout hit with his direction of "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers," duplicates his success with "Deep in My Heart," with Roger Edens producing. It is one of the finest musicals to come from the M-G-M studios.

PARADE OF STARS — "Deep in My Heart", M-G-M's musical, opens Wednesday at the Jim Theatre and stars Jose Ferrer, Merle Oberon, Helen Traubel and a host of guest stars. The musical is in CinemaScope and color by Technicolor.

The number of households in the United States increased 23 per cent from 1940 to 1950.

CAPTIVATING CONTRALTO—One of the fine young newcomers to the Fred Waring organization is contralto Dee Harless, who will appear with all the Pennsylvanians in "Pleasure Time 1955" at Howard Auditorium at La. Tech in Ruston Friday, Feb. 4, matinee and evening. The Ruston Kiwanis club is sponsoring the event to raise funds for the Kiwanis Boys Camp Fund.

TEACH HER TO COOK

Since most women live with a frying pan in their hands, teach your little girl to cook while she is young. If you create the interest now, she probably will not find cooking such a dreadful chore in the future.

WARM SEAT

Here's a new use for the family hot water bottle suggested by a mother: Fill it half full of tepid water and place it at the bottom of the bathtub for a young child to sit on during his bath. It keeps him from skidding.

New Areas Of Fiction

By BOB REUBEN

HOLLYWOOD, January 15 — Hollywood has an insatiable appetite for story material, especially which has something new and novel to express. If the screen is to continue to expand its audiences, its production must explore new areas of fiction — and that development demands a fresh approach to the problem of finding plots which do not suffer from too much literary mileage.

Screen original stories are difficult to market, especially when the authors are unknown to Hollywood producers. There are too many risks along lines of plagiarism suits for the studios to bother with material from unfamiliar sources.

Of course, the best technique is for a new writer to get his work produced or published, depending upon nature of the material. I realize, naturally, that this approach is often difficult to follow but it enhances its chances of being sold to Hollywood and, at the same time, raises its value to film producers as, theoretically, at least, material published or produced has perhaps developed an audience for it when it reaches the screen.

Personally, I got my start in the writing field through being a copy boy for the United Press, the national news service, in Washington, D. C. As in many similar careers, this job led to my becoming a reporter and from this vantage point, I branched out into a foreign correspondent and writer for the screen and other media.

There's nothing like a newspaper training to prepare a novice for the business of writing for films. Obviously you come in contact with all sorts of personalities and people who later become characters in your stories. And, of course, the same applies to situations, both dramatic and comedy. You learn to know people and how they behave and react which instills validity and authenticity in your writings. As practically every town has a newspaper, weekly or daily, and if you have writing aspirations, try for a job on one of these publications and work your way into a reportorial spot. Such experience really pays off.

Another important factor, in my opinion, is this. Study people, the kind you meet every day — and note how they think and talk. I still do this regularly at my Pen and Quill Restaurant at Manhattan Beach, not far from Hollywood. Lucky for me, the Pen and Quill is a sort of rendezvous for writers and newspapermen, as well as actors and producers and consequently I am in a position to take a refresher course which, I feel, is very advantageous in my writing work. As we're located near the International Airport, we play host to various celebrities en route east and so forth.

Practically every community has a "little theater" group and these afford excellent opportunities for trying out new stage material which could be revamped for Hollywood consumption. If your talents are theater in character, by all means focus in this direction, keeping one professional eye trained on Hollywood.

By the same token, there is the radio and television fields which are generally within easy local reach. Here is an excellent market for ideas such as you may develop and, by comparison, not too difficult to contact. You will find this field fairly receptive to the writers as their material needs are enormous.

Perhaps the best approach of all, from the standpoint of the average neophyte is the magazine field. The so-called "pulps" are especially interested in new writers and are nowhere nearly as inhospitable as the "slick" publications which usually buy their material from well-known and established authors. The pulp magazines do not pay the same prices that the slick magazines do, of course, but they are generally more inclined to cultivate embryonic authors.

At the risk of plagiarizing a few hundred authors, more or less, let me point out the tragic fact that becoming a writer is not comparable to lying in a bed of roses. You must get used to the sad and often repeated experience of receiving rejection slips in the mail. Although they are hard to take, you must be prepared to bounce back again and keep your morale up despite such stunning blows to your solar plexus.

Hollywood is willing to pay tremendous prices for good material. Of course, there are agents who represent established writers but until you have some of your work produced or published, you have little chance of persuading them to represent you. So sit down to your typewriter, or get out your pen and start writing. But aim your material at some outlet which which could serve as a preliminary to writing for the screen in Hollywood. Let me repeat one fact. The longest distance in the world is between where you are sitting and your typewriter. Every established author recognizes this grim fact and you must, too.

Spending Based On Prosperity, Preparedness

Gives Hope Of Tax Relief By Next Year

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—UP — President Eisenhower sent Congress Monday a $62,408,000,000 spending budget based on preparedness and prosperity.

He banned tax reduction now, but gave hope of tax relief next year, a presidential election year.

He sounded a solemn alert that peace remains anxiously insecure.

To prepare against "a long period of uncertainty," he allotted to major national security in the new 1956 fiscal year two-thirds of all government spending — $40,458,000,000.

The accent was on air power and atomic weapons. The Air Force got almost as much as the Army and Navy combined.

The President's total new spending budget was down more than $1 billion from this year's and estimated revenue was up $1 billion, but he still couldn't balance the budget. He looked for a deficit of $2,408,000,000.

Reduced Outlays For Farm Props To Cut $1 Billion

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—UP—President Eisenhower told congress Monday that reduced outlays for farm price supports are expected to trim about $1 billion from Agriculture Department spending in fiscal 1956.

He estimated in his budget message, that the department will spend a net $2,495,782,022 in the fiscal year beginning in July. That compares with an estimated $3,424,133,853 this year.

Mr. Eisenhower said the administration's flexible farm price support program, going into effect this calendar year, will "help farmers solve many of their own problems" and cut government spending for support of farm income.

The President expected net price support spending to total $968 million in fiscal 1956 compared to $1,934,000,000 this year.

Although decreased price support spending is expected, the budget showed that the Agriculture Department expects to take a record $769,729,658 loss on its price support program in fiscal 1956.

The estimated loss in fiscal 1955 was estimated at $748,650,495 compared to a previous record loss on $419,477,074 in fiscal 1954.

These losses are made up of the cost of storing surpluses already held, handling charges, plus the loss the government takes in unloading them as sales or giveaways.

The biggest single fiscal 1956 loss was expected to be $309,042,000 on dairy products. That loss estimate compares with a total loss expected on six "basic" crops of $344,245,000.

Mr. Eisenhower said he expects price support spending to drop for two reasons:

The second consecutive year of federal crop controls on basic crops like wheat and cotton and lower props on feed grains and other crops should mean a lower volume of support loans by the government; and returns to the department under stepped up disposal programs of federal surpluses should increase.

Reduced Outlays For Farm Props To Cut $1 Billion

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—UP—President Eisenhower told congress Monday that reduced outlays for farm price supports are expected to trim about $1 billion from Agriculture Department spending in fiscal 1956.

He estimated in his budget message, that the department will spend a net $2,495,782,022 in the fiscal year beginning in July. That compares with an estimated $3,424,133,853 this year.

Mr. Eisenhower said the administration's flexible farm price support program, going into effect this calendar year, will "help farmers solve many of their own problems" and cut government spending for support of farm income.

The President expected net price support spending to total $968 million in fiscal 1956 compared to $1,934,000,000 this year.

Although decreased price support spending is expected, the budget showed that the Agriculture Department expects to take a record $769,729,658 loss on its price support program in fiscal 1956.

The estimated loss in fiscal 1955 was estimated at $748,650,495 compared to a previous record loss on $419,477,074 in fiscal 1954.

These losses are made up of the cost of storing surpluses already held, handling charges, plus the loss the government takes in unloading them as sales or giveaways.

The biggest single fiscal 1956 loss was expected to be $309,042,-000 on dairy products. That loss estimate compares with a total loss expected on six "basic" crops of $344,245,000.

Mr. Eisenhower said he expects price support spending to drop for two reasons:

The second consecutive year of federal crop controls on basic crops like wheat and cotton and lower props on feed grains and other crops should mean a lower volume of support loans by the government; and returns to the department under stepped up disposal programs of federal surpluses should increase.

Spending Based On Prosperity, Preparedness

Gives Hope Of Tax Relief By Next Year

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—UP — President Eisenhower sent Congress Monday a $62,408,000,000 spending budget based on preparedness and prosperity.

He banned tax reduction now, but gave hope of tax relief next year, a presidential election year.

He sounded a solemn alert that peace remains anxiously insecure.

To prepare against "a long period of uncertainty," he allotted to major national security in the new 1956 fiscal year two-thirds of all government spending — $40,458,000,000.

The accent was on air power and atomic weapons. The Air Force got almost as much as the Army and Navy combined.

The President's total new spending budget was down more than $1 billion from this year's and estimated revenue was up $1 billion, but he still couldn't balance the budget. He looked for a deficit of $2,408,000,000.
